

Title	Samrup Rachna : Calligraphic Expression of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]
Author(s)	Anwer, Syed Mohammed
Citation
Version Type	VoR
URL	https://hdl.handle.net/11094/102324
rights
Note

The University of Osaka Institutional Knowledge Archive : OUKA

<https://ir.library.osaka-u.ac.jp/>

The University of Osaka

Śāmrūp Rāchñā

Calligraphic Expression of

Apni Boli
[Hindi-Urdu]

Dr. Syed Mohammed Anwer

Wahdat Foundation
Islamabad, Pakistan.

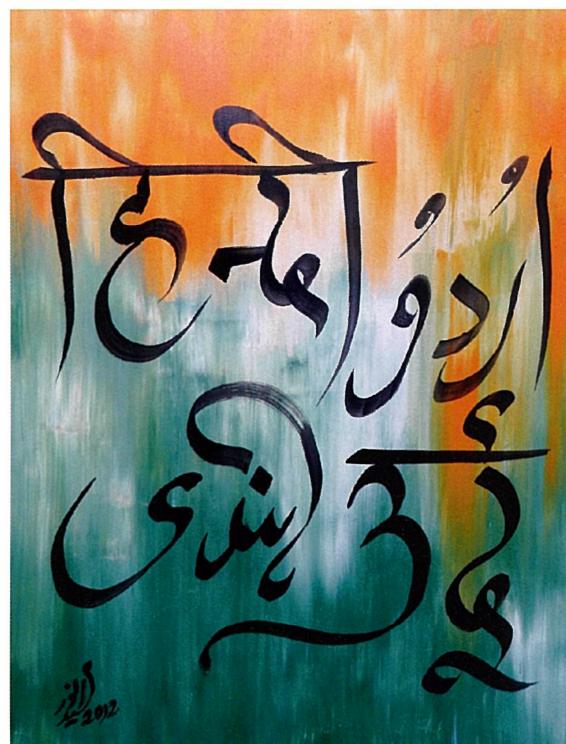

Śāmrūp Rāchnā

Calligraphic Expression of

Apni Boli

[Hindi-Urdu]

Dr. Syed Mohammed Anwer

Wahdat Foundation
Islamabad - Pakistan

Feedback

Twitter: @samruprachna

Facebook: <http://facebook.com/samruprachna>

Speak portal: www.apniboli.samruprachna.com

E-mail: apniboli@samruprachna.com

© 2015 All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system or transcribed in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, without the prior written permission of the author of the book and the calligrapher of the paintings/calligraphies, i.e. Dr. Syed Mohammed Anwer. (syedmanwer@yahoo.com)

Cover: (left) Orhana, (centre) Surahi, (right) Murti are written in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style by Dr. Syed Mohammed Anwer.

publisher: Wahdat Foundation,
4, Waqar Plaza, St. 67, F-10/3, Islamabad (45000) - Pakistan.

Printed and bound in Pakistan by Topical, Lahore. (www.topicalprinters.com)

ISBN: 978-969-8499-03-7

Index: Art, Calligraphy and Linguistics.

Acknowledgement

To my mother who taught me Hindi.

Table of Contents

Foreword		vii
Preface		ix
Introduction		xi
Samrup Rachna's Glossary		xiii
phonology of Apni Boli		xv
I. Allah	اَللّٰہ	1
2. Buddha	بُودھ	3
3. Basant Bahar	بَسْتَ بَهَار	5
4. Putli Tamasha	پُتْلی تَمَاشَا	7
5. Talwar	تَلْوَار	9
6. Tokari	ٹُوكَرِی	11
7. Salis	شَالِش	13
8. Juta	جُوتَا	15
9. Chay	چَائے	17
10. Al Haq	اَلْحَقْ	19
10a. Al hamdulillah	اَلْحَمْدُ لِلّٰہِ	19
II. Khuda	خُدَا	21
12. Diwali	دِیوالی	23
13. Davi	دِیوی	25
14. Dakoo	ڈاکُو	27
15. Zaatpaat	ذَاتِ پَات	29
16. Ram	رَام	31
17. Paroosi	پڑوُسی	33
18. Zawer	زِیوَر	35
19. Zaala	ذَالَہ	37
20. Singhar	سِنْگَار	39
21. Shanti	شَانِتِی	41
22. Surahi	صَرَاحِی	43
23. Zarb-i-Kaleem	ضَرْبِ کَلِیم	45
24. Tota	طُوَطَا	47
25. Zil I Ilahi	ظَلِيلَہِ	49
26. Umar	عُمَر	51
27. Ali	عَلِیٰ	53
28. Ghazal	غَزَل	55
29. Ghuncha	غُنچہ	57
30. Fatwa	فُتُوْیٰ	59
31. Qalam	قَلَم	61
32. Karma	کَرْم	63
33. Gita	گیتا	65
34. Gana	گانا	67

35.	Gayan	जान	گیان	69
36.	Ganesh	गणेश	گنیش	71
37.	Lakhsmei	लक्ष्मी	لکشمی	73
38.	Maya	माया	میا	75
39.	Murti	मूर्ति	مورتی	77
40.	Nirvana	निर्वाण	نروان	79
41.	Ya-wodood	यावुदूद	یادودور	81
42.	Holi	होली	ہولی	83
43.	Hari OM	हरिॐ	ہری اوم	85
44.	Yoga	योग	یوگا	87
45.	Bhajan	भजन	بھجن	89
46.	Phool	फूल	پھول	91
47.	Thaal	थाल	تھال	93
48.	Theyla	ठेला	ٹھیلا	95
49.	Jharooka	झरूका	جھرودکا	97
50.	Chatri	छत्री	چھتری	99
51.	Praim Dharam	प्रेमधर्म	پرمدھرم	101
52.	Dhaal	ढाल	ڈھال	103
53.	Parhna	पढ़ना	پڑھنا	105
54.	Sub khail Tamasha	स्बखेलतमाशा	سبھیل تاشا	107
55.	Ghar Dar	घरद्वर	گھر در	109
56.	Allah	अल्लाह	اللہ	111
57.	Asharam	आश्रम	آشرم	113
58.	Inqilab	इंकलाबी	انقلاب	115
59.	Eeshawer	ईश्वर	ایشور	117
60.	Ulo	उल्लू	الو	119
61.	Uol Jalool	ऊलजलूल	اول جلوں	121
62.	Aikta	एकता	ایکتی	123
63.	Aelan	ऐलान	اعلان	125
64.	Orhna	ओढ़ना	اوڑھنا	127
65.	Aulad-i-Adam	औलादेआদم	اولاد آدم	129
66.	OM	ॐ	اوم	131

Foreword

Dr. Syed Mohammed Anwer, Advocate Supreme Court of Pakistan is an Islamabad based corporate lawyer. He is an active member of civil society and has written books on human rights and women's emancipation. He writes articles on social issues including socio-linguistics. Calligraphy and painting are his hobbies. His interest in calligraphy combines his passion for both disciplines of art and linguistics.

In this book Dr. Anwer manages to introduce the spoken words of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] with a graphic justice. "Calligraphic Expression of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]" is the subject of this book which sets an unconventional precedent in this art form. The latest work of calligraphy by him is the first of its kind in which two scripts of the same language i.e. Hindi-Urdu are used in unison with each other. Hindi and Urdu is one language when spoken but written in two different scripts hence it is the only major language of the world with this characteristic. The purpose of this calligraphic work is to highlight this aspect of our language which is one of the major common denominators between India and Pakistan.

Half of the calligraphies are done in such a way that a picture of the meaning of the word which is written is formed. This has never done by anyone in the history of calligraphic art before. For example word surabi (ewer) is written in such a way both in Hindi (Devanagari) and Urdu (Nastaliq) that a clear picture of surabi is formed. It is hard to comprehend but seeing is believing. The gaze, drawn to the free ebb and flow of the line is given insight into the lives of Apni Boli speakers. Addressed in these paintings are their drives, beliefs, customs, adversities as well as the purging unexpected mirth and laughter that rings through this diverse landscape – home to 1.6 billion population of this earth. This is humanitarian art with its best put forward, except that it is bare foot... pattering, clambering and seeking towrods that fierce joy that the want of a shoe in icy winter or blistering summer cannot dull. The painting Joota is a tribute to the indigent million who brave extreme clime barefoot while elected governments focus their budgets on a senseless arms race.

Comprising of over sixty calligraphic impressions, the artist classifies his work under two categories: "Mail Rachna" and "Samrup Rachna". An unusual innovation, "Mail Rachna" is a world of calligraphic lines realized in the scripted fusion of Nastaliq Abjad and Devanagari. Literally meaning "unison", this technique employs the two diverse streams of writing which chart the waters of the spoken word. Basic charcoal black directs the gaze towards the lucid cadence of fluid strokes. In addition, the color palette lends splashes of mirth in pieces like “uooljalool” and “putlitamasha”.

A step further into the unexplored realm of script combinations is “Samrup Rachna”; an avant-garde minimalist technique in which the lines etched on the parchment qualify the pictorial denotation of the word. Coined “Samrup Rachna” by Dr. Anwer, it is Sanskrit for similarity or congruence. This method thrives on the perfect combination of Hindi and Urdu written expression aimed at an artistic revelation of the “signified” through the “signifier”. What is signified is the surfacing design or “Rachna”. Artistic allowance welds the two scripts in the unconventional role of double signifiers. The picture, incomplete in one script tugs the cords of the sister script. Nothing short of a startling epiphany is the image of the word unfurled before the onlooker whilst remaining faithful to the conventional lines of the script units. Language is invoked as the magic dust of the conjuring artist. The merger of the two scripts defies the abstract connection between word and object; thus armed, the artist ingeniously cracks the language code. Out of the narrow straits of the scripted maze emerge the unusual assemblage of “Samrup Rachna”- from robbers to revolutions and hermitages...it is all there.

Saba Anwer

Preface

It was the summer of 1976, I wanted to play outside in the scorching heat of Rawalpindi and my mother wanted me to remain inside the house. Being an average student I had no interest in summer vacation homework. Drawing was the only subject of my interest, so one day my mother scribbled some letters on my scrapbook and asked me to copy each letter a hundred times with qalam, a special pen with a broad slant cut nib meant to write Urdu Nastaliq script. The shapes of those letters were not only new but intriguing for me. Those were Hindi alphabets. I immediately tried to copy them but it was difficult, then I asked, which language is this? She told me Hindi. Hindi! I was stunned. Hindi? Hindi is a language of Hindus, instinctively and innocently I said. Will I not become Hindu? She smilingly replied, language has no religion we make it Hindu and Muslim. I did not get the depth of her reply but the words of my mother were enough to satisfy me that there is nothing wrong with learning these letters. The second thought which occurred to me was how she knew this language. I asked her did she study Hindi? To my astonishment she said No! Then how do you know it? Her reply was enough to make me fall in love with this language. She said in fact Hindi and Urdu is one language only written in two different scripts. For my understanding, on the same scrapbook, she wrote the corresponding letters of Urdu with the Hindi letters. My eyes were wide open and I felt as if I had stumbled upon the encrypted code of a treasure chest. She further told me that pre-partition she studied in a Girls School of Faridabad (India) where she being Muslim would study Urdu and her Hindu friends would study Hindi so sitting side by side with her Hindu friends she learnt Hindi just by watching them. This discussion of half an hour or less with my mother was the first and the perhaps the most profound lecture on linguistics I ever had.

My interest in calligraphy of the scripts of my own language (Apni Boli) initiated in childhood led to the study of my own culture and society (Apna Smaj); which culminated in some art form after so many decades as is manifest in this work.

Unlike many other books containing so many illustrations, in this work painting preceded writing. So in other words this is an illustration of my calligraphic work. It was not at all a planned work or project it just happened. Scribbling and doodling is one of my pastimes which caused this work to happen as one day I was doodling with Devanagari script sitting in my law firm. The idea started with writing a few words in Nastaliq (نستعلیق) (নস্তালীক) and Devanagari (ديوانگاري)

(देवनागरी) the two scripts of Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu) in unison. Some of them emerged as fascinating patterns. At home, I borrowed crayons from my daughter and again drew those words in different colors. Next I decided to paint them. Then all the other ideas followed.

Dr. Syed Muhammad Anwer
26 September, 2015
Islamabad.

Introduction

Calligraphically all the illustrations in this book are divided in two categories. Category one is the first ever attempt by anyone in the history of art or calligraphy. In this category a word of Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu) is written in its two scripts Nastaliq and Devanagari in such a way that a picture emerges which depicts or coincides with the meaning of that word. These words are mostly nouns. The word Juta for example means shoe in Apni Boli is written in Devanagari and Nastlique jointly and in juxtaposition with each other in such a way that a clear picture of Juta or a shoe is formed. Almost half of the work is done in this style. The words like, صراحی surahi (ewer), چتری chatri (umbrella), طوطا tota (parrot), اول ullu (owl), تالوار talwar (sword), ٹیکھی theyla (hawkers' trolley), توکری tokari (basket) دیوالی dewali, پوتلی putli (puppet), قلم qalam (pen) and داکو dakoo (dacoit) etc. are written in this style. I have named this form of calligraphy or art as “Samrup Rachna” سامرپ رچنا, Samrup is a beautiful Sanskrit word meaning congruence, conformation or similar and Rachna is also a Sanskrit word which means creation, fabrication, design, work or compose. The name coincides with the style and form of the work. In the same style I have attempted to write infinitives also like paRhna پڑھنا (to read) and auRhna اورھنا (to cover) etc. In the second category calligraphy of a word is done in Devanagari and Nastaliq simply in conjunct with each other like the word Allah اللہ, Khuda خدا, Ishwar ایشور etc. are written. I have named this category as “Mail Rachana” mail mean unison and rachna is a Sanskrit word meaning design.

The core purpose of this book is to give prominence to the common denominators existing in the language and the culture of India and Pakistan. As our spoken language is the same. The term Apni Boli is given to (Hindi-Urdu) because this phrase conveys the meaning of ownership of its speaker no matter which script it is written in. Apni Boli means “my own language” and it can also be translated as “our own language”. Irrespective of the fact whatever the name is given to this language (Hindi or Urdu) it will remain “my/our own language” اپنی بولی (Apni Boli). Language does not have any religion its speaker may have any religion so whatever script is written, it is written in “my/our own language” (Apni Boli) and it will an unnatural decision if I disown any of the literary work of my own language only because it is written in a script which is illegible to me. This illegibility of the “other half” of my own language renders us all at least “half” illiterate. Why remain half illiterate? Why remain antagonistic? Why remain deprived?

We all know that Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu) is one language, which is one of the largest spoken languages of the world. Apni Boli is the third in the world ranking after Chinese and English, some even suggests it as second largest with more than 600 million speakers all around the world. According to the number of it speakers in the world Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu) deserves to be an official language of the United Nation yet it falls nowhere in the ranking of the world’s leading languages. Why? because it is written in two altogether different scripts i.e. Devanagari (commonly known as Hindi script) and Nastaliq (commonly known as Urdu script) hence it stands divided. In fact this is a unique feature of this language and a sign of its strength and diversity. Devanagari keeps us connected with the rich culture of Hinduism, its deep philosophical and humanist treasure of words, while the Nastaliq script expands its horizon, its power to adopt and to acquire words from the entire Persian and Arab world starting from Iran up to the western coasts of Morocco and Malawi.

This divide of Nastaliq and Devanagari script per se was never there for more than eight centuries of co-existence of Hindus and Muslims in the Sub-Continent prior to the advent of British Raj in India. Muslims did not bring any new language with them they formulated a script for the popular and dominating pre-existing language of the sub-continent. This language was formalized by the introduction of Nastaliq script and accommodation of all the sounds. This phenomenon was typical Indian in form and nature acceptable to all, accommodating everyone and rejecting none. Merging all the vocabularies and purging none. This was Apni Boli, it was there before the arrival of the Muslims to the sub-continent and is still there.

Language has no religion

Does language have a religion or do the speakers of a language have a religion? This is a simple question and its answer is more simpler. Language has no religion. Any religious thoughts can be written in any language and a follower of any religion can speak and write any language. These lines appear to be very basic and simple but interestingly they are not so understood in this part of the world. Devanagari script of Apni-Boli (Hindi-Urdu) is synonymous to Hindus and Hinduism and likewise Nastaliq script of the same language is synonymous to the Islam and Muslims. This attitude is being followed and observed even at state level.

This book and accompanied illustrations is an attempt to make realize and reiterate the fact that Apni Boli i.e. Hindi-Urdu is one language by all standards written in two different scripts. This should not be seen as a sign of divide, rather a symbol of strength, unity and diversity of our common lingual and cultural heritage of our samaj. Purging is difficult and damaging; merging is easy and beneficial for any growing universal language and culture. Choice is ours!

Samrup Rachan's Glossary

Apni Boli

[Hindi-Urdu]: In this book the term “[Hindi-Urdu]” is used as a name for a language which is written in two scripts and which had different names in the past like, Hindustani, Hindvi, Hindi, Urdu, Rekhta, Khari Boli, Birj Bhasha, Dakhani and so on. This language was divided on the basis of religion with the division of the Indian sub-continent on the same basis. On the count of its speaker it is one of the largest spoken language of the world but when it is reduced to writing in two different scripts its ranking also reduces, because then it is wrongly perceived by its speakers and non-speakers as two different languages. The term 'Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]' collectively means '[Hindi-Urdu] our own language'.

Devanagari:

Throughout in this book the term is used for “Hindi” script. Devanagari is the proper noun of “Hindi” script. The word Devanagari is a compound word of “deva” meaning god and “nagari” meaning city. Collectively it means a script of from the 'city of god' due to its artistic style. It is written from left to right and a full line runs along the top of full letters. Devanagari script has forty-seven primary characters, of which thirty-three are consonants. Generally the orthography of the script reflects the pronunciation of the language

Nastaliq:

Throughout in this book the term Nastaliq is used for the, written script used to write “Urdu”. Most commonly Nastaliq is the name of a font and popularly it is used to write “Urdu”. It is so commonly used to write Urdu that it has almost become synonymous to Urdu script or to be precise 'Urdu rasam-ul-khat'. It is based on the Persio-Arabic script though as compared to Arabic it has more than 50% of those sounds which do not even exist in Arabic. As compared to Persian it has around 40% additional sounds which do not exist in Persian. It is an elegant script. The literal meaning of the word Nastaliq is etiquettes or manners. Unlike Devanagari it is written from right to left and over the line. The alphabets of similar shapes are arranged in sets. Every letter has a name and a specific sound.

Mail Rachna: This term is coined by the Author of this book for another category of his calligraphy displayed in this book. To refer those calligraphy expressions in which a congruent design is formed but not a picture of the same word is formed which written, as it happens in Samrup Rachna calligraphy. The word 'mail' joining or linking or connection and Rachna means designs. So Mail Rachna means joining the designs. The calligraphic designs like Zaat Paat (caste system), Paroosi (neighbors), Shanti (peace) etc. are all written in Mail Rachna Calligraphic style.

Samrup Rachna: This term is also coined by the Author of the book for his calligraphic work. Samrup in Sanskrit means congruent or similar and Rachna in Sanskrit means design so Samrup Rachna means congruent designs. These designs are congruent with the meanings of the word written in it and they also explain that these two scripts are congruent to one another. It is a term coined by the author to appropriately represent the calligraphy which is a first ever attempt. Two different scripts are used which unify to write the same word in such a way that it forms a picture which is the meaning of that word. Like Samrup Rachna of Thela (Trolley) forms a picture of trolley, Tota (Parrot) forms a picture of parrot, Surabi (Ewer) forms a picture of ewer, Murtee (statue) forms a picture of a statue. etc.

Phonology of Apni Boli

Consonants
I		Bilabial	Dental	Retroflex	Palatal	Velar	Post-Velar
Glottal
Voiceless, unaspirated	پ	ٹ	ٺ	ٺچ	ڙک	ڙڪ	ڙ	ڙا
Voiced, unaspirated	p	t	T	c	k	q	[‘]
Voiced, unaspirated	ٻ	ڏ	ڙ	ڙڻ	ڙڻ
	b	d	D	j	g
Voiceless, aspirated	ڦڻ	ڦڻ	ڦڻ	ڦڻ	ڦڻ
	ph	th	Th	ch	kh
Voiced, aspirated	ڦڻ	ڦڻ	ڦڻ	ڦڻ	ڦڻ
	bh	dh	Dh	jh	gh
II
Voiceless	ڦڻ	ڦڻ		ڦڻ / ڦ	ڦڻ
	f	s		s	x
voiced	ڦڻ	ڦڻ		ڦڻ	ڦڻ
	w	z		z-	G
III
	ڻ	ڻ	ڻ	ڻ	ڻ	ڻ	ڻ	ڻ
	m	n	y	r	Rh	l	R	h
Vowels
	ا	اا	ا	اا	ا	ا	ا	ا
	a	aa	i	ii	u	uu	e	ai
Nasalization		ڻ
		N

Description: Alif (ا) for Allah. Allah, the proper name of Muslims' God written two times in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and once tim in Devanagari script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. In Nastaliq script of Apni Boli it is written as (اا) [ا + ا + ا + ا] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is written as (अल्लाह) [अ+ ल +ल +ा+ ह]. It starts with the letter (ا) in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and with the letter (अ) in Devanagari script of Apni Boli. Both produce the same sound.

Alif (ا) is the first letter of Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and letter (अ) is the first letter in Devanagari script of Apni Boli. Both the letters (ا) & (अ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/ə/”. They both give the sound of “a” as in English word (father). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (a).

الله

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

Description: Bay (ب) for Buddha. Buddha is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli. It is written in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style a silhouette of Buddha's head and a golden hallow around it is added so that a clear picture of Buddha emerges.

In Devanagari script of Apni Boli Buddha is written as (बुद्ध) [ब + उ + द + ध], [the 'u' (उ) sound is represented through its maatra (ਊ) and dba (ধ) in the end in written in its diacritic form jointly with da (দ) as (দধ)]. In Nastaliq script of Apni Boli it is written as (بُدھ) [ب + پاٹھ + ب] [the 'u' sound is represented with paish over bay (ب)].

Bay (ب) is the second letter in Nastaliq alphabets of Apni Boli which phonetically is an exact representation of (ब) in Devanagari script of Apni Boli. Both the letters (ب) & (ब) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/b/”. They both give the sound of “b” as in English word (bin). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (b).

الفن
الفن

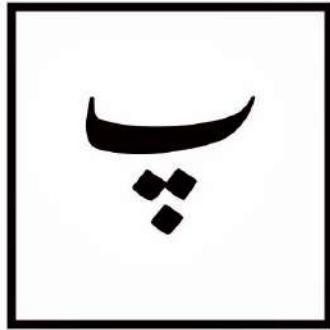

Description:

Basant Bahar is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of ApniBoli [Hindi-Urdu] in unison. Vasant Panchami is a festival of this region that highlights the coming of spring. This festival is usually celebrated in Magh (the name of the month in Bikrami Calendar) which falls between the months of January and February according to Gregorian calendar. It is celebrated with full festivity. Bahar means 'spring' since this festival comes in spring season so the word has become synonymous to bahar (spring) and these two words are often used together.

Vasant is written in Sanskrit as (वसन्त) the initial 'va' sound is converted to 'ba' sound usually when it is used by a native speaker Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. This interchanging of 'va' sound to 'ba' sound and viceversa is a common phenomenon in this region especially with the speakers of Punjabi language, when they use any borrowed word from other language. In this case the word is borrowed from Sanskrit.

Basant Bahar is written in mail rachna calligraphic style in unison in the two different scripts of one language [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Devanagari script as (बसंतबहार) [बसंतबहीर] 'na' sound it represented by its diacritic form (◌). In Nastaliq script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] it is written as (بasant بھار) [ب+س+ا+ن+ت-ب+س+ا+ر].

ଶ୍ରୀମଦ୍ଭଗବତ

Description: Putli Tamasha is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli. The term 'Putli Tamasha' means puppet show or puppetry in Apni Boli. It is written in Nastaliq script as (پڻ) and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (پُتَلَी) (तमाशा).

Pay (پ) for Putli. Putli means puppet in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] and it is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word Putli is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of Putli [puppet] which is the meaning of the word that is written.

Putli is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (پڻ) [پ+ڻ+ت+ع] the “u” sound is represented by (ڻ) over (پ). In Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is written as (पुतली) [प+ु+त+ल+ी] the 'u' (उ) sound is represented through its maatra (ु) similarly 'ee' (ई) sound is represented through its maatra (ी).

Pay (پ) is the third letter in Nastaliq alphabets. It is written in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (प). Both the letters (پ) & (प) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/p/”. They both give the sound of “p” as in (Pakistan). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (p).

مُحَمَّد

الْكَلِمَةُ الْمُبَارَكَةُ
كَلِمَةُ الْمُحَمَّدِ

2013

Description: Tay (ت) for Talwar. Talwar means sword in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word talwar is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of talwar [sword] which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written in Nastaliq script as (ت) (ر+ا+و+ل+ت) and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (तल्वार) [त+ल+व+ा+र].

Tay (ت) is the fourth letter in Nastaliq alphabet of Apni Boli and is first sound of dental series of letters in Devanagari script of Apni Boli in which it is written as (त). Both the letters (ت) & (त) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/t/”. They both give the sound of “t” as in word (Taj Mahal). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (t).

لهم إني أسألك
لهم إني أسألك
لهم إني أسألك

اللهم إني
أسألك

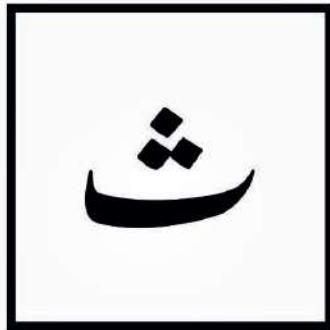

Description:

Tay (ٿ) for Tokari, which means basket in Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu). Tokari is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu) jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word Tokari is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of Tokari [basket] which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written as (ٿوکری) [ٿ+و+ک+ر+ی] in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (टोकरी) [ट+ो+क+र+ी] the “o” (ओ) sound is represented through its maatra (ओ) similarly 'ee' sound is represented through its maatra (ी).

Tay (ٿ) is the fifth letter in Nastaliq alphabets of Apni Boli. It is the first letter of retroflex series in Devanagari script of Apni Boli and it is written as (ट). Both the letters (ٿ) & (ट) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/tʰ/”. They both give the sound of “t” as in English word (train). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (tʰ).

لهم
لهم

الله
2011

Description: Salis is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari Scripts of Apni Boli. Salis means arbitrator in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. that picture of a weighing scale is formed which represents the meanings of the word 'arbitrator' which is written. This word 'salis' is mostly used in the area or by the people who use Apni Boli with higher influence of Arabic vocabulary. The people who use Apni Boli with higher influence of English or Sanskrit hardly use this word. Salis is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ش) [+شش] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is written as (सालिस) [स+ा+ल+ि +स].

The letter (ش) is used only in Arabic borrowed word in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. Both the letters (ش) & (स) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/s/”. They both give the sound of “s” as in English word (sound). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (s) or (s).

سالانہ

اللہ
2011

Description:

Jeem (ج) for Joota. Joota means shoe in Apni Boli [Hindi-i-Urdu]. It is written in Nastaliq and in Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli in Samrup Rachana calligraphic style i.e. the word joota is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of joota [shoe] which is the meaning of the word that is written. Joota is written as (جootا) [ج + ਊ + ت + ا] in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (जूता) [ज + ਊ + त + ा] [Vowel ऊ is represented through its maatra (ਊ)]. Similarly अ is represented through its maatra (आ)]. A shoe may does not mean much for many people but it is a life time luxury for millions in this part of the world.

Jeem (ج) is the seventh letter in abjad of Nastaliq. In Devanagari the letter (ज) gives the same sound which is the third letter in the Palatal series of the letters in Devanagari script of Apni Boli. Both the letters (ج) & (ज) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/dʒ/”. They both give the sound of “j” as in English word (jug). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (j).

كفرنجة

202

Description: Chaay means tea in Apni Boli. Chaay is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly. It is written in Nastaliq and in Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word 'chaay' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of a teakettle, thus representing the meaning of the word 'chaay' which is written. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is written as (चाय) [च+ा+य]. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (چاڻ) [ڻ+ا+چ]. The last vowel sound of 'ay' is represented by (ڻ) not only by (ء) because it is preceded by a vowel sound of 'a' (ء). This is the only feature of this super script character called hamza (ء) in Apni Boli while using its Nastaliq script. The use of hamza is different in Nastaliq script from Arabic or Persian. In Nastaliq it is only used as a super script unless it is used in writing any borrowed word of Arabic or Persian or is used as izaafat.

Cha (چ) is the eighth letter of Nastaliq alphabets and is the first sound of Palatal consonants series in Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is written as (च). Both the letters (چ) & (ڻ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/tʃ/". They both give the sound of "ch" as in English word (challenge). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (ch).

دُنْيَانِ
دُنْيَانِ

الله
2011

Description:

Haq means right, truth and established proof etc. al-Haq is one of the attributive names of Allah. It is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli jointly. Al-Haq is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (اَل-ْحَقُّ) [ا+ل+ح+ق+] the initial 'al' is Arabic equivalent of English “the”. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli 'al-Haq' is written as [अल-हङ्क] [अ +ल+ ह+ क]. In second picture al-hamdulillah is written in both the scripts of Apni Boli in unison, which means all praise is for Allah. It is written in Nastaliq script as (اَلْحَمْدُ لِلَّهِ) [ا+ل+ح+م+د+ل+ل+ه+] and in Devanagari scripts as (अल-हमदु लिल्लहि) [अ+ल-ह+म+दु-लि+ल+हि�]

Hay (ڦ) or as commonly called bari bay represents an aspirated sound in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli. In addition there is another letters (ڦ) choti bay or gol [round] bay (ڦ) in Nastaliq script which also represent aspirated sound which should not be confused with bari bay (ڦ). The bari bay is the ninth letter in Nastaliq alphabets of Apni Boli and choti bay (small hay) or gol bay (round hay) is the thirty-second letter. However, in Devanagari script of Apni Boli only one letter (ह) ha represents the proper and independent “ha” aspirated sound. So there are two letters of almost similar sounds in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli. Both the letters bari bay (ڦ) and choti bay (ڦ) of Nastaliq and “ha” (ह) in Devanagari script of Apni Boli have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/h/”. All three give the sound of “h” as in English word (haul). They can be transcribed in Romanized form as (h) to distinguish between the bari bay (ڦ) and choti bay (ڦ) the bari bay (ڦ) can be transcribed in Romanized form as “H” and choti bay (ڦ) as (h).

الحمد لله رب العالمين

الحمد لله رب العالمين

الله
بِسْمِ اللّٰہِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِیْمِ

الحمد لله

Description: Khay (خ) for Khuda. Khuda means God in Persian and is the most commonly used borrowed word in Apni Boli. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli. Khuda is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (خدا) [خ + دا] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (ਖੁਦਾ) [ਖ + ਤ + ਦ + ਾ] the vowel (ਤ) is represented through its maatra (ਾ) and (ਤ) is represented through its maatra (ਾ) [ਖ + ਤ + ਦ + ਾ].

Khay (خ) is the tenth letter in Nastaliq alphabets. It represents 'kha' sound which does not exist in Sanskrit hence for Devanagari script of Apni Boli a letter was coined by putting a dot underneath letter "kha" which gives the closest sound of it hence making it as (ਖ) to represent this sound properly for the use of Devanagari script. This sound mainly occurs in the borrowed words of Arabic, Persian and from other languages in Apni Boli. Both the letters (خ) & (ਖ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/x /". They both give the sound of "ch" as in Scottish word (loch). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (kh).

شیخ علی

دانیل
2012

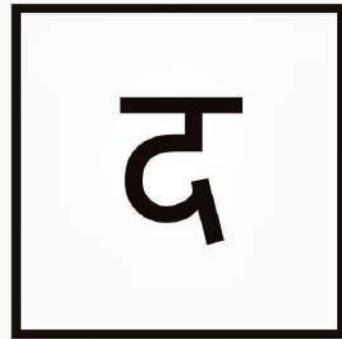

Description:

Dewali a Hindu “festival of light” is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli. It is written in Nastaliq and in Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word 'Dewali' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of a 'Dep' (an oil lit lamp) which depicts the meanings of 'Dewali'. Traditionally these type of oil lamps are usually lit on the night of this festival of light, 'Dewali'. Sometimes this festival is also called 'dep-wali' means related to 'dep'. Diwali is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (دِیوالی) [د+ی+و+ال+ی+] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (दिवाली) [दि+वा+ली] or more elaborately [द+ि+व+ा+ल+ी].

Dal (,) is the eleventh letter in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli the letter (द) represents “da” sound. Both the letters (,) & (द) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/d/”. They both give the sound of “d” as 'th' in English word (the). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (d).

لهم إني أنت ملائكة وروح ونور

لهم إني أنت ملائكة وروح ونور

Description:

Word Devi means goddess in Apni Boli is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli. It is written as (دیوی) [د+ی+و+ی+] in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and as (देवी) [दे+वी] or more elaborately as [द +े+ ब+ ि] in Devanagari Script of Apni Boli. The masculine of 'devi' is 'deva' meaning god.

In the word “Devanagari” which is the name of one of the scripts of Apni Boli, 'deva' means (god) nagari means (city) hence Devanagari means a script from the city of god. The script is so artistic and beautiful that it is appropriately referred to as such.

الله

Description: Dakoo means Dacoit and is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq script of Apni Boli jointly. It is written in Nastaliq and in Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word 'dakoo' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture. It is written as (ڈو) [ڈ+و+و+و] in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and as (ڈاکو) [ڈ+ا+کو] or more elaborately as [ڈ +ا+ क +و] in Devanagari script of Apni Boli.

Daal (ڈ) is the eleventh letter of Nastaliq script and (ڈ) is the first letter in the series of palatal sounds in Devanagari script of Apni Boli. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli the 'daal' sound is represented by a letter (ڈ) which is exactly the same as the sound of 'd' in dollar. Interestingly its shape somewhat also resembles with the dollar sign ($) which ironically is considered as a representative sign of the exploitative aspect of capitalism. Both the letters (ڈ) & (ڈ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/d/". They both give the sound of "d" as in English word (drum). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (d).

سید علی

Description:

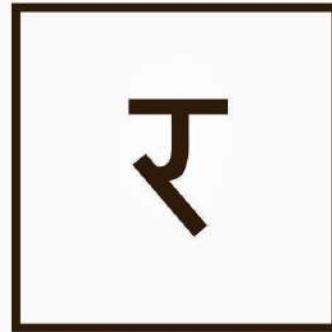

Zaat Paat means caste system. It is written in Samrup Rachna style of calligraphy depicting its deep roots in our culture. Above the surface, its thorny nature is harmful and damaging to the humanity. It is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli.

Zaat Paat is written in Devanagari as (ज्ञातपात) [ज्ञ +ा +त+ प +ा+ त]ज्ञा + त +पा + त] and is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ڙاٽپاٽ) [ڙ+ا+ت+پ+ا+ت].

Zaal (ڙ) is the twelfth letter of Nastaliq script Apni Boli it is similar in shape with 'daal' only mark of differentiation is a dot on top of it. Zaal is an Arabic and Persian sound. It does not originally exist in Apni Boli but to accommodate the Arabic and Persian vocabulary in Apni Boli an additional letter was coined in Devanagari script of Apni Boli by putting a dot underneath "ja" (ଜ) which is its closest sound hence making it as 'za' (ڙ). Even otherwise "j" and "z" sounds are often interchangeable in many other languages of this region including Punjabi and Bengali. Many words of Apni Boli [Urdu-Hind] starting from 'z' are converted with 'j' sound and vice versa. Both the letters (ڙ) & (ଜ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/z/". They both give the sound of "z" as in English word (zoo). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (z).

الفن
2012

Description: Ram is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli. Rama is one of the many popular figures and deities in Hinduism. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (رم) [رم+ا+م] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (राम) [र + + म] [र+ा+म].

Ray (ر) is the fourteenth letter in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and letter (र) is its equivalent in Devanagari script of Apni Boli. Both the letters (ر) & (र) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/r/”. They both give the sound of “r” as in English word (rain). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (r).

ریاض

Description: Parosi means neighbor. Parosi is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq in Unison. No word in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] starts with the letter rAay (ર). It always comes in the end or in the middle of a word as in Parosi. Parosi is written in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (पड़ोसी) [प+डो+सी] more elaborately as [प+ड +ो+ स+ ी] and in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (پ، ڈ، ڈو، سی) [پ+ڈو+، +سی+، پ، ڈو، سی].

RAay (ર) is a peculiar sound of Apni Boli. It is not present in Arabic, Persian or even Sanskrit. In Nastaliq script it resembles with ray with a small toay (ਊ) mark over it. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli the letter representing this sound is coined by putting a dot underneath the letter DAal (ଡ) which is its closest sound hence making it as (ଡ). Both the letters (ર) & (ଡ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/ɾ/”. It is difficult to transcribe this sound in English although it can be nearly transcribed in Romanized form as (r) or (ɾ)

The presence of this sound or letter in any word of Apni Boli has an importance of its own i.e. that our own Apni Boli is not only an independent language having its own syntax and vocabulary but it even has its own sounds and characters with no equivalents in Sanskrit, Arabic and Persian or any other language having considerable influence over Apni Boli.

ب
د
ر
س
م
س

2012

Description: Zay (ڙ) for Zawer. Zawer means jewelry in Apni Boli. Its written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style. It is written in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (ज़ेवर) [ज़े + ऐ + व + र] [ज़े+ व + र] and in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ڙےڙ) [ڙ+،+ڙ+ڙ]

Zay (ڙ) is the fifteenth letter in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli. It is mostly used in Arabic and Persian words. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli this sound did not exist originally so a letter was coined by linguists to represent the sound of 'za' in Devanagari script by putting a dot underneath the letter (ज) which converts "Ja" sound into 'za' (ڙ) sound. This Za (ڙ) sound in Devanagari script is used to represent all the rest of the similar (za) sounds that exist in Arabic and Persian alphabets like Zaal (ڙ), Zuad (ڙ) and Zoay (ڙ).

Both the letters (ڙ) & (ڙ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/z/". They both give the sound of "z" as in English word (zoo). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (z).

Description:

Yaala means 'hail' written in Davanagari and Nastaliq in Union. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ڄڻ) [ڄ+ڻ+ا+ڻ] and in Devanagari as (ڙڻلَا) [ڙڻلَا] [ڙ+ ڻ + ڻ + ل + آ].

Zhay (ڙ) is also called Persian zay. It is a pure Persian sound only used in words borrowed from Persian or to transcript the sound of "si" as used in some English borrowed words like Television or Vision of English. The French 'j' as in 'bonjour' is an exact sound of 'zhay' of Apni Boli. In Devanagari it is depicted in many ways which are shown in the calligraphy, but the standard manner as made by Indian Transliteration Standards is by putting a dot underneath letter 'jhay' (ڙڻ) which bears the closest sound of zhay hence making it (ڙڻ). Both the letters (ڙ) & (ڙڻ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “//ʒ”. They both give the sound of “j” as in French word 'bonjour' or of “si” as in 'television' or 's' in pleasure. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (z).

In Apni Boli this sound is used in a very few words rather hardly any word starts with (ڙ) or (ڙڻ). Perhaps “television” is the most commonly used words in Apni Boli in which this letter (ڙ) (ڙڻ) is used. In Devanagari this sound is represented in three different ways as (ڙڻلَا, ڙڻلَا, ڙڻلَا) This letter and its sound is almost redundant. It only helps in writing foreign sound, hardly a few dozen words of Apni Boli contain this letter. They are not in common use.

شیخ زین الدین

سید علی

Description:

Singar means makeup done by ladies. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word 'singar' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of a lady with bindya on her forehead and a necklace around her neck symbolizing the makeup she is wearing or her 'singar', which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (سؒن) [س+ن+ؒ+ن+سؒ] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (संगार) [सं+गा+र] [स+ं+ग+ा+र] the letter 'na' is represented by a dot (ঽ) over 'sa' (স).

Seen (سؒ) in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and letter (स) in Devanagari script of Apni Boli is the standard basic sound of (sa) in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. According to IPA it is represented as (/s/) and it is equivalent to 's' of English as in word (seen). In Nastaliq script of Apni Boli there are two other letters which give the similar sound of (sa) i.e. say (سؒ) and suad (سؒ)، other than seen (سؒ). These other two sounds of 'sa' are also generally represented with one letter (स) in Devanagari script of Apni Boli.

سید جمال الدین

Description:

Shantee means peace in Apni Boli. It is written in Devonagri as (शान्ती) [�ান্তী] or more elaborately as [শ+া+ন+ত+ি] and in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (شانتی) [শান্তী+ت+ي]. In the second picture (down) the phrase 'Shanti OM' is written which conveys the meaning of universal peace. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts jointly. The phrase Shanti Mantras or "Peace Mantras" are Hindu prayers for Peace (Shanti) from the Vedas. Generally they are recited at the beginning and end of religious rituals and discourses.

Sheen (ش) in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli gives the sound of "sh" in Devanagari script of Apni Boli letter (श) gives the same sound which is the first letter of sibilant series of letters in Davanagari alphabets of Apni Boli. Both the letters (ش) & (শ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/ʃ/". They both give the sound of "sh" as in English word (dish). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (sh).

In addition to that a retroflex "ஷ" usually not distinguishable from (sh) in pronunciation also exist in Devanagari script of Apni Boli which is commonly known as "Krishan ka sheen" only found in some of the Sanskrit loanwords. This 'sh' falls under the same category of a letter borrowed from a language by Apni Boli which has retained its shape but lost its sound. 'sh' (ஷ) is borrowed from Sanskrit. By and large such letters are only used in the borrowed word. The (ش) (শ) & (ஷ) are represented as (/ʃ/ or /ʂ/) in IPA, and are transcribed in Romanized form as (sh or sh). Both the 'sh' of Devanagari i.e (শ) and (ஷ) are correspond with (ش) of Nastaliq script of Apni Boli.

سُلَيْمَان

اَللّٰهُمَّ اكْبِرْ

Description: Suad (س) for Surabi. Surabi means ewer in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style. The word 'Surabi' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of Surabi [ewer] which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] as (سراہی) [س+ر+ا+ہ+ب] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] as (सुराही) [सु + रा + ही] or more elaboratively as [स + ु + र + ा + ह + ऀ].

Suad (س) is another word in Natalique script of Apni Boli which gives the sound similar to 'sa' in Devanagari script of Apni Boli this sound is basically represented by a letter (س). According to IPA it is represented as (/s/) and it is equivalent to 's' of English as in word (seen). In Nastaliq script of Apni Boli there are two other letters i.e. say (س) and suad (س), other than seen (س) which give the similar sound of (sa). In Devanagari script these other two sounds are generally represented with one letter (स).

الغور
٣٤١

Description:

Zarbi-i-Kaleem is a Persian phrase used in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] is written in unison in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. On the left side of calligraphy a silhouette of Allam Iqbal is added. 'Zarb' means "to strike" and the word 'Kaleem' means 'one who talks' and a conjunctive 'i' means 'of'. The literal means of the phrase "Zarb-i-Kaleem" is 'one who strikes through words' or 'one who tries to teach' somebody. Zarb-i-Kaleem is also the title of Allama Iqbal's third collection of poems, which has been described as his political manifesto. It was meant to rescue Muslims from the ills of illiteracy and backwardness. Zarb-i-Kaleem is written in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (जारबेकलीम) [जा +रबे +क +ली +म] or [ज़ +र +ब +ै +क +ल +ी +म] and in Nastaliq as (ضربِ کلیم) [ضرب + کلیم + م].

Zuad (ڙ) gives the sound of 'za'. In Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] this sound did not exist originally so a letter was coined by the classic linguistic to represent the sound of 'za' in Devanagari script by putting a dot underneath the letter (ज) which converts 'Ja' sound into 'za'(ज़) sound. This Za (ज़) sound in Devanagari script is used to represent all the rest of the similar 'za' sounds that exist in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli.

This 'z' sound is mostly used in borrowed words from Arabic and Persian. The alphabets like Zaal (ڙ), Zuad (ڙ) and Zoay (ڙ) all give a similar sound of 'z' in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] and are represented with a single letter (ज़) in Devanagari script of Apni Boli. According to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) it is represented by "/z/". They both give the sound of "z" as in English word (zoo). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (z).

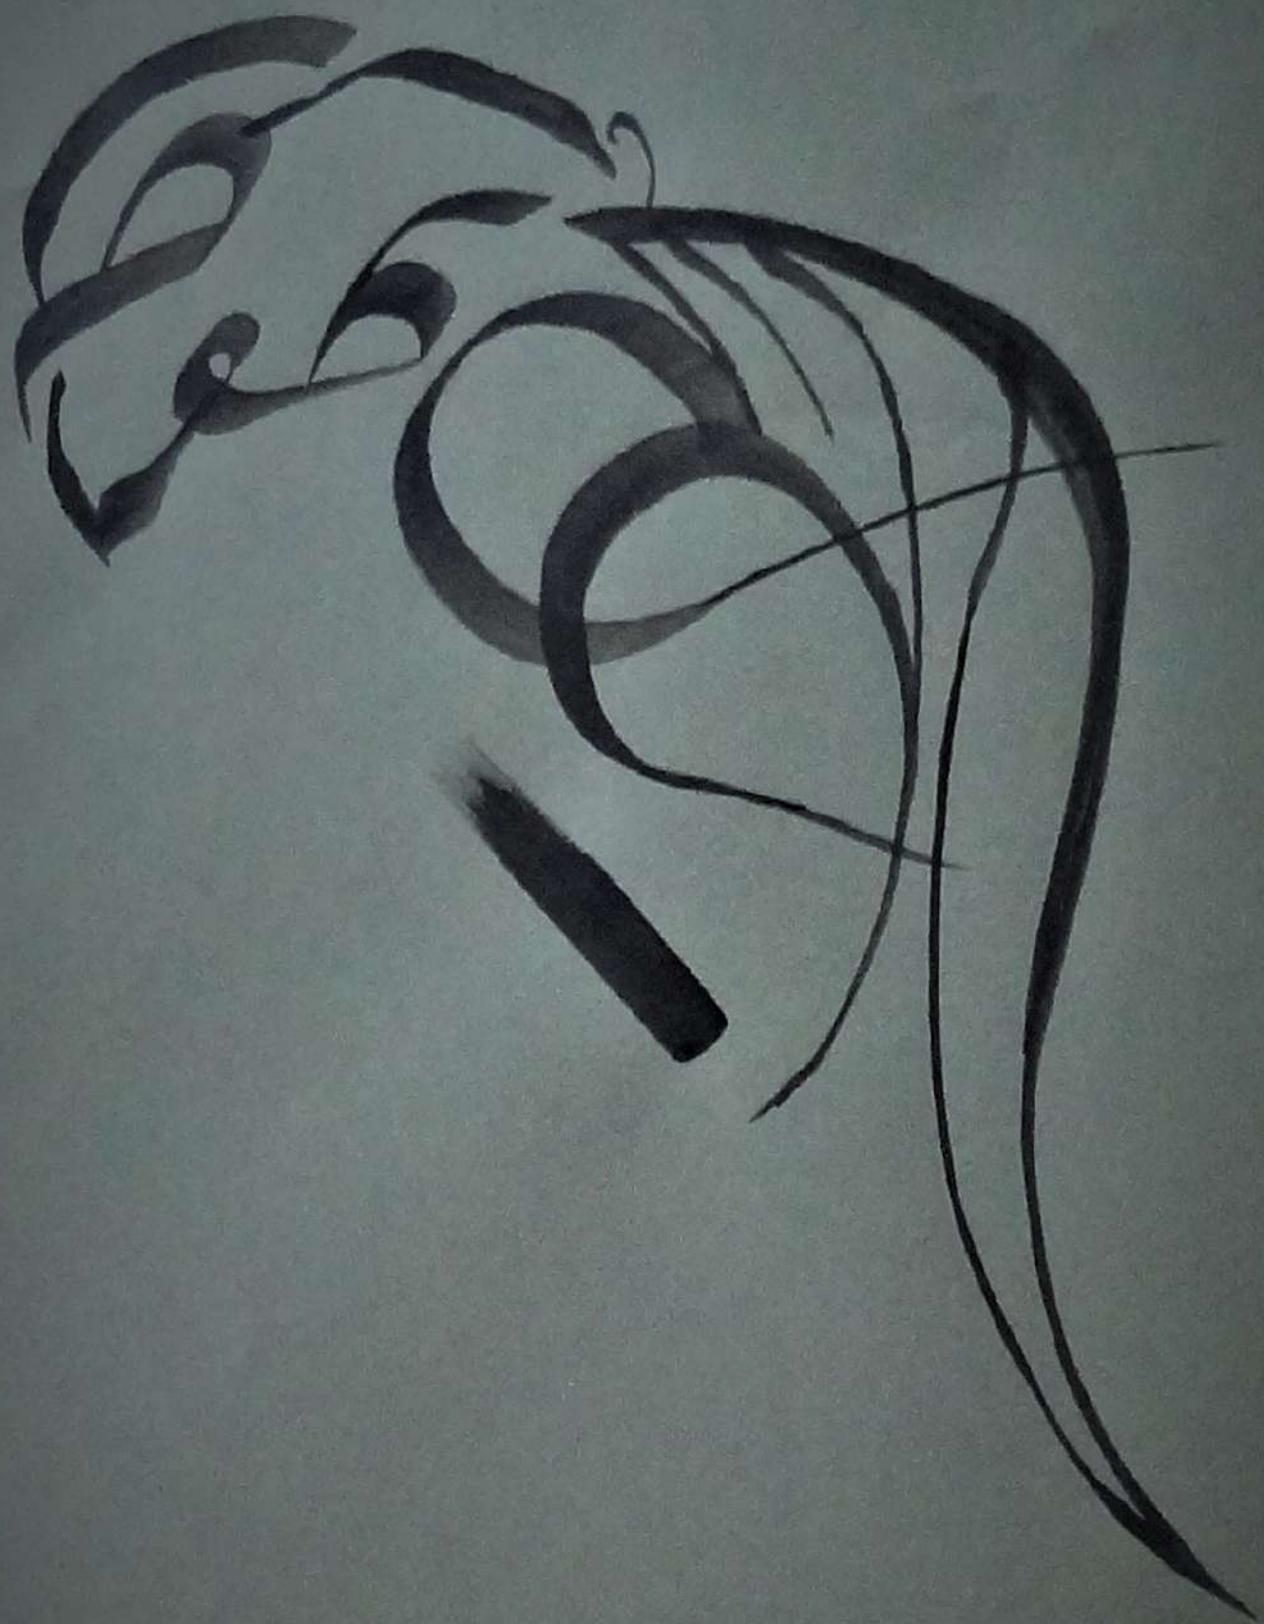

فَلَمَّا
أَتَاهُمْ
مَا أَعْهَدُ
لَهُمْ أَوْ
لَمْ يَرَوْهُ
أَوْ أَنْهَمُوهُ
أَوْ أَنْهَمُوهُ
أَوْ أَنْهَمُوهُ

الله
2012

Description: Toay (ٻ) for tota. Tota means parrot in Apni Boli. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word tota is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of tota [parrot] which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written as (ٻٻ) [ٻ+ٻ+,+ٻ] in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli; and is written in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (तोता) [तो+ता] or more elaborately as [त+ो+त+ा].

Both the letters (ٻ) & (त) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/ t/”. There is another letter in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli (ڦ) which also gives almost the same sound and also represented in Devanagari script of Apni Boli with letter (ତ). They (ٻ) & (ତ) both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (t).

Description:

Zoay (ڙ) for Zil-i- Elabi, means shadow of God in Persian but this phrase is commonly used and known in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]; as a title used by Mughal Emperors especially by Akber. Zil means shadow in Arabic and in Persian, “i” is Persian izaafat which has been inculcated in Apni Boli from Persian. It imparts beauty to the language. It gives the meaning of 'of'. In fact it is one of the linguistic tools which helps a lot in adding poetic beauty to Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. In the picture the phrase Zil-i-illahi is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli. In Devanagrai it is written as (ज़लेइलाही) [ज़ + ले + इ+ ला+ ही] or [ज़ + ल + इ + ल + ा+ ह+ ऀ] and is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ڙلِلِهِ).

Zoy (ڙ) gives the sound of 'za' (ڙ). It originally represents a Persian sound which is nearer to the sound of 'za' in Apni Boli. It is like a few other letters of this category which are borrowed from other languages to accommodate their word corpus in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. These letters have mostly lost their original accent or sound but have retained their shapes. Some of them are from Persian which have retained their shapes in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli while some of them are from Sanskrit which have retained their shapes in Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli. In transition from Persian and from Sanskrit to Apni Boli they have actually lost their original sounds but a few speakers put stress upon maintaining their original sounds too which is one of the causes of confusion amongst majority of the speakers of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu].

In Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is represented with the letter (ज़) which is coined by putting a dot underneath the letter (ज). Both the letters (ڙ) & (ज़) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/z/”. They both give the sound of “z” as in English word (zoo). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (z).

فَلَمَّا دَرَأَ
بَلَقَ

الله

Description:

Omer is a proper noun and a common name in Muslims. Omer (583-644 CE) is the name of second Caliph of Islam who is known for his administrative abilities. It is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli in union along with a super script of “^ا” used in Nastaliq script means Allah is pleased with him. It is written in Nastaliq script as (اُمر) [ا+م+ر] and in Devanagari as (ओम्) [ओ+म] or [ओ+म+र].

Ain (اُ) bears a very peculiar sound of Arabic, but its Arabic sound is lost in its transition from Arabic to Apni Boli only its shape remain in the Nastaliq script of Apni Boli. In Nastaliq though it is written as (اُ) and represents the same sound as it is used in Arabic words but hardly any speaker of Apni Boli pronounces it in 'correct' distinguishing Arabic accent rather they pronounce it more closely to “a” sound of alif or 'a' as in 'father'. Since Devanagari script of Hindi-Urdu is more phonetic based and does not contain accents in normal speech therefore in Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is equated with the sound of “a” as in (अ). Therefore, at times it seems that it is troublesome but for ease if we consider it as another vowel equivalent sound then this confusion goes away. Ain (اُ) can appear in six possible forms. This linguistic intricacies and details attached to the art of “Samrup Rachna” is discussed with much detail and elaboration in the second book of this series titled “Apni Boli Apna Smaj” by the same author. Ain (اُ) is normally transcribed in English in Romanized form by 'u', 'o' 'i', 'ee', 'ea' or 'a' depending on the vowel sound which follows it.

رہیں اکاٹھاں
رہیں رہیں

Description: Ali is a proper noun and a common name in Muslims. Ali (601-661 CE) is the name of fourth Caliph of Islam who is known for his knowledge and wisdom. It is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli in union along with a super script of “ؑ” used in Nastaliq script means “may peace be upon him”. It is written in Nastaliq script as (ؑ) [ؑ+ل+ؑ] and in Devanagari as (अली) [अली] [आ+ल+ी].

Ain (ؑ) bears a very peculiar sound of Arabic as explained in the previous description relating to 'Omar'. It can appear in six possible forms. This linguistic intricacies and details attached to the art of “Samrup Rachna” is discussed in much detail in the second book of this series called “Apni Boli Apna Smaj” by the same author.

According to International Phonetic Alphabets it is represented by six different letters depending on its position in a word i.e /ɑ:/, /o:/, /e:/, /ʔ/, /ɪ/, /ø/. Ain (ؑ) is normally transcribed in English in Romanized form by 'u', 'o' 'i', 'ee', 'ea' or 'a' depending on the long or short vowel sound which follows it.

ଅମ୍ବା

ଶବ୍ଦ

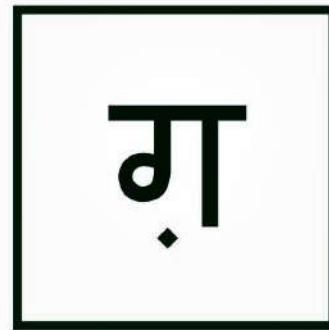

Description:

Ghain (غ) for Gahzal. Ghazal is a poetic form of Apni Boli consisting of rhyming couplets with each line sharing the same meter and prosody known as radeef and qafia. One of the literal meanings of Ghazal is 'talking with the ladies'. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word ghazal is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of a woman which symbolizes and relates to one of the literal meanings of the word ghazal i.e 'talking with the ladies'. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (جڙ) [ج + ڙ] and in Devanagari Script of Apni Boli as (ঁজল) [ঁ + জ + ল].

Ghain (غ) is also a typical Arabic sound also found in Persian it is close to the sound of (gha). Originally this sound was nonexistent in the Devanagari script so a letter was developed to represent this sound by putting a dot underneath the letter 'Ga' (ঁ) making it 'Gha' (ঁ). Both the letters (غ) & (ঁ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/ɣ/”. They both give the sound of “gha” as in French letter (r). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (gh).

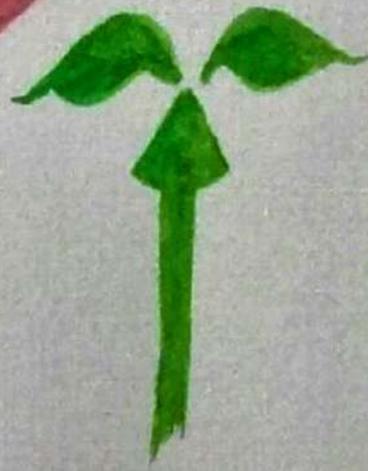

لهم إني
أنت السلام
أنت السلام

Description: Gain (ঁ) for Ghuncha. Ghuncha means a half blossomed bud of flower in Apni Boli. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word 'Ghuncha' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of Ghuncha [a half blossomed bud of flower] which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written in Nastaliqas (ঁ) [ঁ+ঁ+ঁ+ঁ] and in Devanagari it is written as (ঁচ্চা) (ঁ+ন+চ+আ) or [ঁ+ঁ+চ+ট].

Ghain (ঁ) is also a typical Persio-Arabic sound. It is close to the sound of (gh). Originally this sound was nonexistent in the Devanagari script so a letter was developed to represent this sound by putting a dot underneath the letter 'Ga' (ঁ) making it (ঁ). Both the letters (ঁ) & (ঁ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/ঁ/”. They both give the sound of “gh” as in French letter (r). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (gh).

الحمد لله رب العالمين

الحمد لله رب العالمين

Description: Fay (ڦ) for Fatwa, which means a juristic opinion given by an Islamic scholar. The word Fatwa is written in two different scripts of one language jointly. In Nastaliq fatwa is written as (ڦڻڻ) [ڦ+ڻ+ڻ]. The “a” sound in the end is given by “ڦ” which is called alif maqsura and is a typical Arabic form of writing alif. It comes usually in the end of a few words. In Nastaliq script it is known as “kbara alif”. It is only used when any Arabic word is intended to be written as it is, otherwise this “kbara alif” is never used in any word of Apni Boli. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli fatwa is written as (ଫତ୍ଵା) [ଫ +ତ+ଵ+ା] or [ଫ +ତ +ଵ + ାତ].

Fay (ڦ) is the twenty-sixth letter of Nastaliq script of Apni Boli. It gives the sound of “f”. This is a borrowed sound from Arabic and Persian to Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. In Devanagari script it is represented by a letter (ଫ) which is coined by putting a dot underneath the letter phay (ଫ) hence making it fa (ଫ). Since phay (ଫ) is the closest sound of Apni Boli to “fa” sound so it conveniently accepts the dot to exactly represent the sound of “fa”. By acceptance of this sound “f” in Apni Boli a new gateway was opened to accept many words from other languages like Arabic, Persian and English etc. In IPA this sound is represented by (/f/). They, (ڦ) and (ଫ) both give the sound of “f” as in English word (father). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (f).

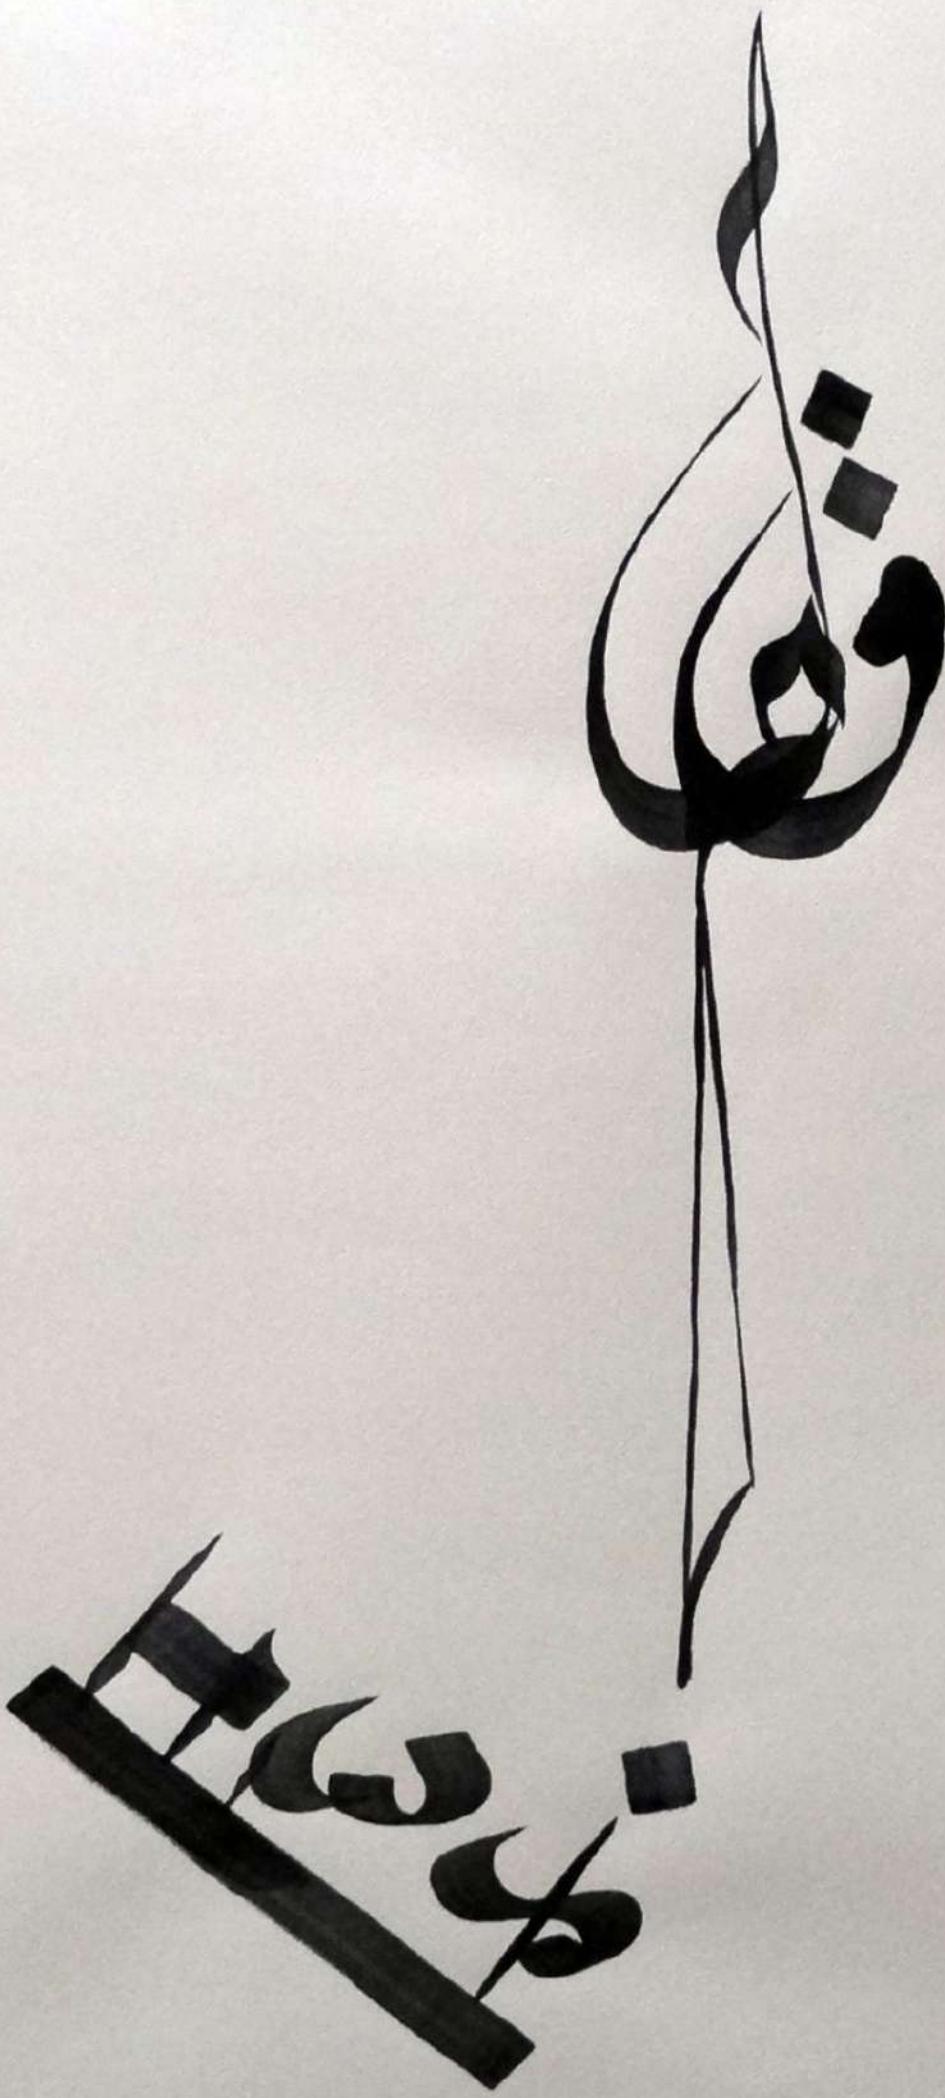

شوق

الله

Description: Qaaf (ڦ) for Qalam. Qalam means pen in Apni Boli. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word qalam is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of qalam [pen] which is the meaning of the word that is written. In Nastaliq script of Apni Boli it is written as (ڦ) [ڦ + ل + ڦ] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is written as (କଳମ) [କ + ଳ + ମ].

Qaaf (ڦ) gives the sound of 'qa' but with further deep sound from the throat. It is an Arabic sound and is represented in Devanagari script of Apni Boli with a coined letter similar to the sound of 'ka' 'କ' by putting a dot underneath it and making it as (କ). Both the letters (ڦ) & (କ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/q/". They both give the post velar sound of "qua". They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (q).

الله
أحمد العسلي ٢٠١١

Description: Kaaf (ڙ) for Karma. Karma is a deep philosophical concept regarding the entire cycle of cause and effect (the cycle is called samsara). Hindus, Jains, and Buddhists believe in this philosophical concept of "actions" or "deeds", which causes the entire cycle of cause and effect. Karma's literal meaning is deed or act, it is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ڙ) [ا+ڙ+ر+ڙ] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (କର୍ମ) [କ+ର୍ମ] or [କ+ର+ମ].

Kaaf (ڙ) is twenty-seventh letter of Nastaliq alphabets of Apni Boli. In Devanagari script letter 'ka' (କ) exactly represents the sound of Kaaf. It is the first consonant sound of Devanagari script of Apni Boli. Both the letters (ڙ) & (କ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/k/". They both give the sound of "k" as in English word (king). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (k).

الحمد لله رب العالمين

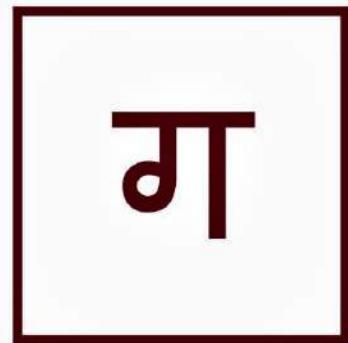

الحمد لله رب العالمين

Description: Gaaf (ڱ) for Gita. The literal meaning of Gita is Song. Gita is the scared book of Hinduism. The proper name of Gita is Bhagavad Gita. Gita is a part of Mahabarta, a great ancient Sanskrit epic. It is a compilation of seven hundred verses. Gita is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ڳڻ) [ڳ + ڻ + ڻ + ڻ] and in Devonagri script of Apni Boli as (ଗିତା) [ଗି + ତା] or [ଗ + ତି + ତ + ତ]. Gita is written in style of Mail Rachna of calligraphy making the digit five (୫) of Nastaliq script of Apni Boli symbolizing the five basic topics disused in Bhagavad Gita.

Gaaf (ڱ) is twenty-seventh letter in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and it gives the sound of 'Ga'; in Devanagari script of Apni Boli letter (ଗ) gives the same sound. Both the letters (ڱ) & (ଗ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/g/". They, (ڱ) & (ଗ) both give the sound of "g" as in English word (gate). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (g).

الله

Description: Gana means “song” and also “to sing” in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Mail Rachan calligraphic style. Gana is written in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (गाना) [ग+ा+न+ा] and in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ગાન) [ગ+ા+ન].

Description:

Gyan means knowledge or wisdom in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Mail Rachna calligraphic style. It is basically a Sanskrit word so it conveys a deep philosophical meaning of acquiring knowledge and the understanding of the world around us, including the concentration required for acquiring knowledge. Gyan is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (جیان) [ج + ی + ں]. It is written in Devanagari script of Apni Boli in classical way as (जान) [ज + ा + न]. The letter (ज) represents a typical Sanskrit sound which gives the sound of 'ga' and 'ya' jointly and can be transcribed in Romanized form as 'gya'. In Devanagari script it is also written as (ग्यान) in a simpler way.

كَلْمَة

كَلْمَة

كَلْمَة

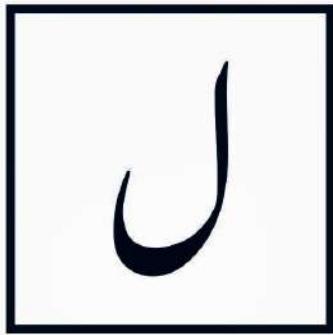

Description:

Ganesh is one of the most famous of Hindu deities. Almost all Hindu sects worship him regardless of their affiliations. He is known by many attributes. Ganesh's elephant head makes him easy to identify. Ganesh is widely revered by Hindus as the remover of obstacles, the patron of arts and sciences and the deva of intellect and wisdom. As the god of beginnings, he is honored at the start of rituals and ceremonies. Ganesh is also invoked as a patron of letters and learning during writing sessions.

Ganesh is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word Ganesh is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms the picture of an elephant head depicting Ganesh which is the meaning of the word that is written.

Ganesh is written in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (गणेश) [ग+ण+ेश] and in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (گنیش) [گ+ن+ی+ش].

سید علی بن ابی طالب

Description: Lam (ڄ) for Lakshmi. Lakshmi is the name of the Hindu goddess synonymous to wealth and prosperity in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. She is also represented by a beautiful lotus flower. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word 'Lakshmi' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of a golden lotus which symbolizes Lakshmi. Lakshmi is written in Nastaliq as (لکشمی) [ڄ+م+ڦ+ڪ+ڻ] and in Devanagari as (ଲକ୍ଷ୍ମୀ) [ଲ+କ୍ଷମୀ] [ଲ +କ୍ଷ +ମ +ୀ].

Lam (ڄ) is the twenty-eighth letter of Nastaliq script of Apni Boli in Devanagari script of Apni Boli letter (ଳ) represents this sound. Both the letters (ڄ) & (ଳ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/l/”. They both give the sound of “l” as in English word (luck). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (l).

Description: Meem (م) for Maya. Maya means illusion in Sanskrit which has multiple meanings in our culture and all of them are centered around the concept of "illusion". It is also used for wealth, which is considered as a worldly illusion and a temporal thing of the realm in which we live. Maya is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (م)[ا+ي+ا+م] and is written in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (माया)[म+ा+य+ा]

Meem (م) is the thirtieth letter of Nastaliq script of Apni Boli in Devanagari script of Apni Boli this sound is represented by letter (म). Both the letters (م) & (म) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/m/". They both give the sound of "m" as in English word (mother). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (m).

Description: Meem (م) for Murti. Murti means statue in Apni Boli. Morti is written in Nastaliq as (ڻڻڻڻڻ) [ڻ+ڻ+ڻ+ڻ+ڻ] and in Devanagari as (मूर्ति) [मू+र्ति] [म+ ڻ+र+त+ି].

Meem (م) is the thirtieth letter of Nastaliq script of Apni Boli in Devanagari script of Apni Boli. This sound is represented by letter (م). Both the letters (م) & (म) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/m/”. They both give the sound of “m” as in English word (mother). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (m).

Description: Noon (ن) for Nirvana. Nirvana is a place of perfect peace and happiness, like heaven. In Hinduism and Buddhism, Nirvana is the highest state that someone can attain, a state of enlightenment, meaning a person's individual desires and suffering go away. It is written in two scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly. Nirvana is written in Nastaliq script as (ن, ن) [ا+ن+ا+, +ن+ن] and in Devanagari script as (निर्वाण) [न+fि +र+व+ो+ण].

Noon (ن) is the thirty-first letter in the Nastaliq alphabets of Apni Boli. It sounds like “na”. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is represented by more than one letters, but mainly it is represented by letter (न). Both the letters (ن) & (न) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/n/”. They both give the sound of “n” as in English word (noon). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (n).

In Devanagari script of Apni Boli 'na' sound is also represented by letters (ङ), (ञ) and (ण) which are represented in IPA as /ɳ/, /ɳ/ and /ɳ/ respectively and all three of them are transcribed in Romanized form as ɳ, ñ and ɳ respectively. All these are used in borrowed words from Sanskrit. Principally, they all give the sound of 'na' with slight difference and have lost their exact and correct pronunciation during transition from Sanskrit to Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. As Nirvana is a Sanskrit word, so another type of 'na' (ण) is used in it in the end.

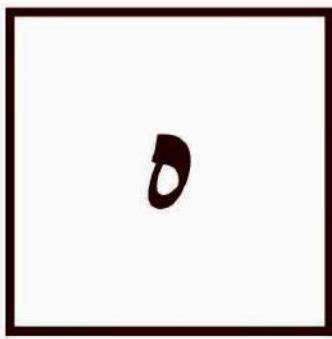

سیدنا
خواجہ

Description: Ya Wudood (O He Who loves) is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq in unison. Wudood means most loving, it is one of the attributes of Allah and it is one of His names. Wudood is written in Nastaliq as (،،،) [،+،+،+] and Ya-Wudood is written as (،،،۔) [،+،+،+،+۔]. In Devanagari as Wudood is written as (वुदोद) and Ya-Wadood is written as [या-वुदोद] [य + ॐ]-[व + ु + दू + द]. The word 'ya' is used in Arabic for calling someone. The word Wudood is from the three letter root word of w-d-d (،،،) that has the classical Arabic connotations of, to love, to like, to be friendly, to be affectionate, tender, and to be amicable etc.

Woa (,) sound is one of the original sounds of Apni Boli. Both the letters (,) & (ঁ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/ v /v/,/v/,/w/”. They (,) & (ঁ) both give the sound of “v” or “w” as in English words (wall or valley). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (v) or (w).

Description: Hay (ھ) for Holi. Holi means the festival of colors which is a famous festival of Hinduism. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ھولی) [ھ+و+ل+و+ل+ی] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (होली) [ह+ो+ल+ो+ल+ी].

hay (ھ) is the thirty-second letter of Nastaliq alphabets of Apni Boli. It is also called hawa wali ha [hay of hawa (هو) (air)] in order to distinguish it with another letter that also gives an aspirated sound in Nastaliq scripts i.e. hay (ڿ) which is commonly known as halway wali hay or bari hay [hay of halawa (حلوا) (sweet)]. Bari hay is only used in the borrowed words of Arabic and Persian and its 'original' sound is though aspirated but quite glottal. This Arabic accent, lost in transition from Arabic to Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] in common speech becomes like hay (ھ) and one cannot differentiate between the two, unless someone wants to make it different. So the Choti hay (ھ) is equivalent to (ह) of Devanagari script of Apni Boli and Bari Hay (ڿ) can be differentiated from the choty hay (ھ) by placement of a dot underneath (ھ) and making it (ह) for the purpose of correct and accurate transliteration of Devanagari to Nastaliq and vice versa, as also proposed by W.W.Hunter in 1848. Both the letters (ھ) & (ह) have an almost corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/h/” and “/h /”. They both give the sound of “h” as in English word (holy). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (h).

Description:

The word Hari (हरि) is written in Devanagari script and in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. 'Hari' means 'the remover' i.e the remover of bondage. According to Hinduism when one remembers His name and then repeats it the pain and suffering are removed. In Hinduism the most famous mantra is 'Hari Om' which is written in the second picture (down) in Devabagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. In Devanagari Hari is written as (हरि) [ह+र+री] the letter (र) comes in its diacritical form. and in Nastaliq script it is written as (ھر) [ھ+ر+،]. The mantra Hari Om is written in Davanagari as (हरिओं) [ह+ र+ री+ओं] and in Nastaliq script as (ھری اوں) [ھ+ر+ر+اں].

Letter (ھ) is called do-chasmi Hay (two eyed hay) due to its shape. Basically this is just another style of writing choti hay (ھ). These two are same in all respect except in shape. There is no difference in these two letters. Therefore it often creates confusion while writing Nastaliq script, especially for non-native speakers. The second cause of confusion is the occurrence of this shape (ھ) appears in Nastaliq script in conjuncture with diacritics of jeem (ج), Che (چ) and kaaf (ڪ) etc. to represent the original aspirated sounds of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. Each one of these aspirated sounds is duly represented by single independent letter in Devanagari script of Apni Boli like jhay (ڄ) chay (ڇ) and khay (ڦ) etc.

اَللّٰهُمَّ اسْمُكَنْيَنَّا
فِي جَنَّتٍ لَّمْ يَرَهَا
نَّاسٌ وَّلَا يَعْلَمُهَا

Description: Yay (ی) for Yoga, which is a physical, mental, and spiritual discipline, originating in ancient India. It is written in mail rachna style of calligraphy. The word 'yoga' is written four times in Devanagari and four times in Nastaliq scripts the two different scripts of one language in unison. It is written in Nastaliq as (یو) [ی+وووو] and in Devanagari as (योग) [य+ଓ+গ]. The sound of 'o' is represented through its maatra (ଓ) and since it is originally a Sanskrit word so the last ga (গ) is pronounced with 'a' sound attached to it, if we drop the last 'a' sound then it would become only yog.

Yay (ی) is the last letter of Nastaliq script of Apni Boli, in Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is written as (य). It is divided into two categories in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli i.e Choty Yay (ی) and Bari Yay (ے). They are different in shape when they appear in the end of a word or in isolated form but in the middle and in the beginning they have the same shape.

Both the letters (ی /ے) & (য) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/j/”. They both give the sound of “y” as in English words (yard or yak). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (y).

Description:

Bhay (ب) for Bhajan. It is written in Nastaliq as (بھا) [ب+ھ+ا] and in Devanagari (भजन) [भ + ज + न]. Bhajan is a type of Hindi devotional song. It has no fixed form it may be as simple as a mantra or kirtan or as sophisticated as the dhrupad or kriti with music based on classical ragas and talas. It is normally lyrical, expressing love for the Divine.

bha (ب) is the first aspirated sound in Nastaliq script normally taught separately from its abjad i.e (alif to yay). It is normally considered to be a combination of two letters i.e. Bay (ب) and Do-Chashmi Hay (ھ) in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli. In fact this is not a combination of two letters but for all practical purposes it is one letter because in Devanagari script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] there is a proper single letter for this sound which is represented by a letter (ঃ) 'bha'. In Devanagari letter (ঃ) occurs after its un-aspirated pairing letter 'ba' (ং).

bha (ب) is a peculiar sound of Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu) the presence of this sound in any word more often than not means that the word belongs to original Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu) word corpus. Same is true with all the letters representing the aspirated sound and contains the shape of (ھ) in their appearance. Do-chasmi hay (ھ) is considered as Arabic equivalent of Choti hay (ھ) therefore the wrong use of do-chasmi hay (ھ) independently in a word in Nastaliq script instead of choti hay (ھ) often leads to confusion.

Both the letters (ب) & (ঃ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/bʱ /". They both give the sound of "bh". This sound is similar to 'bh' as in English word (abhor). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (bh).

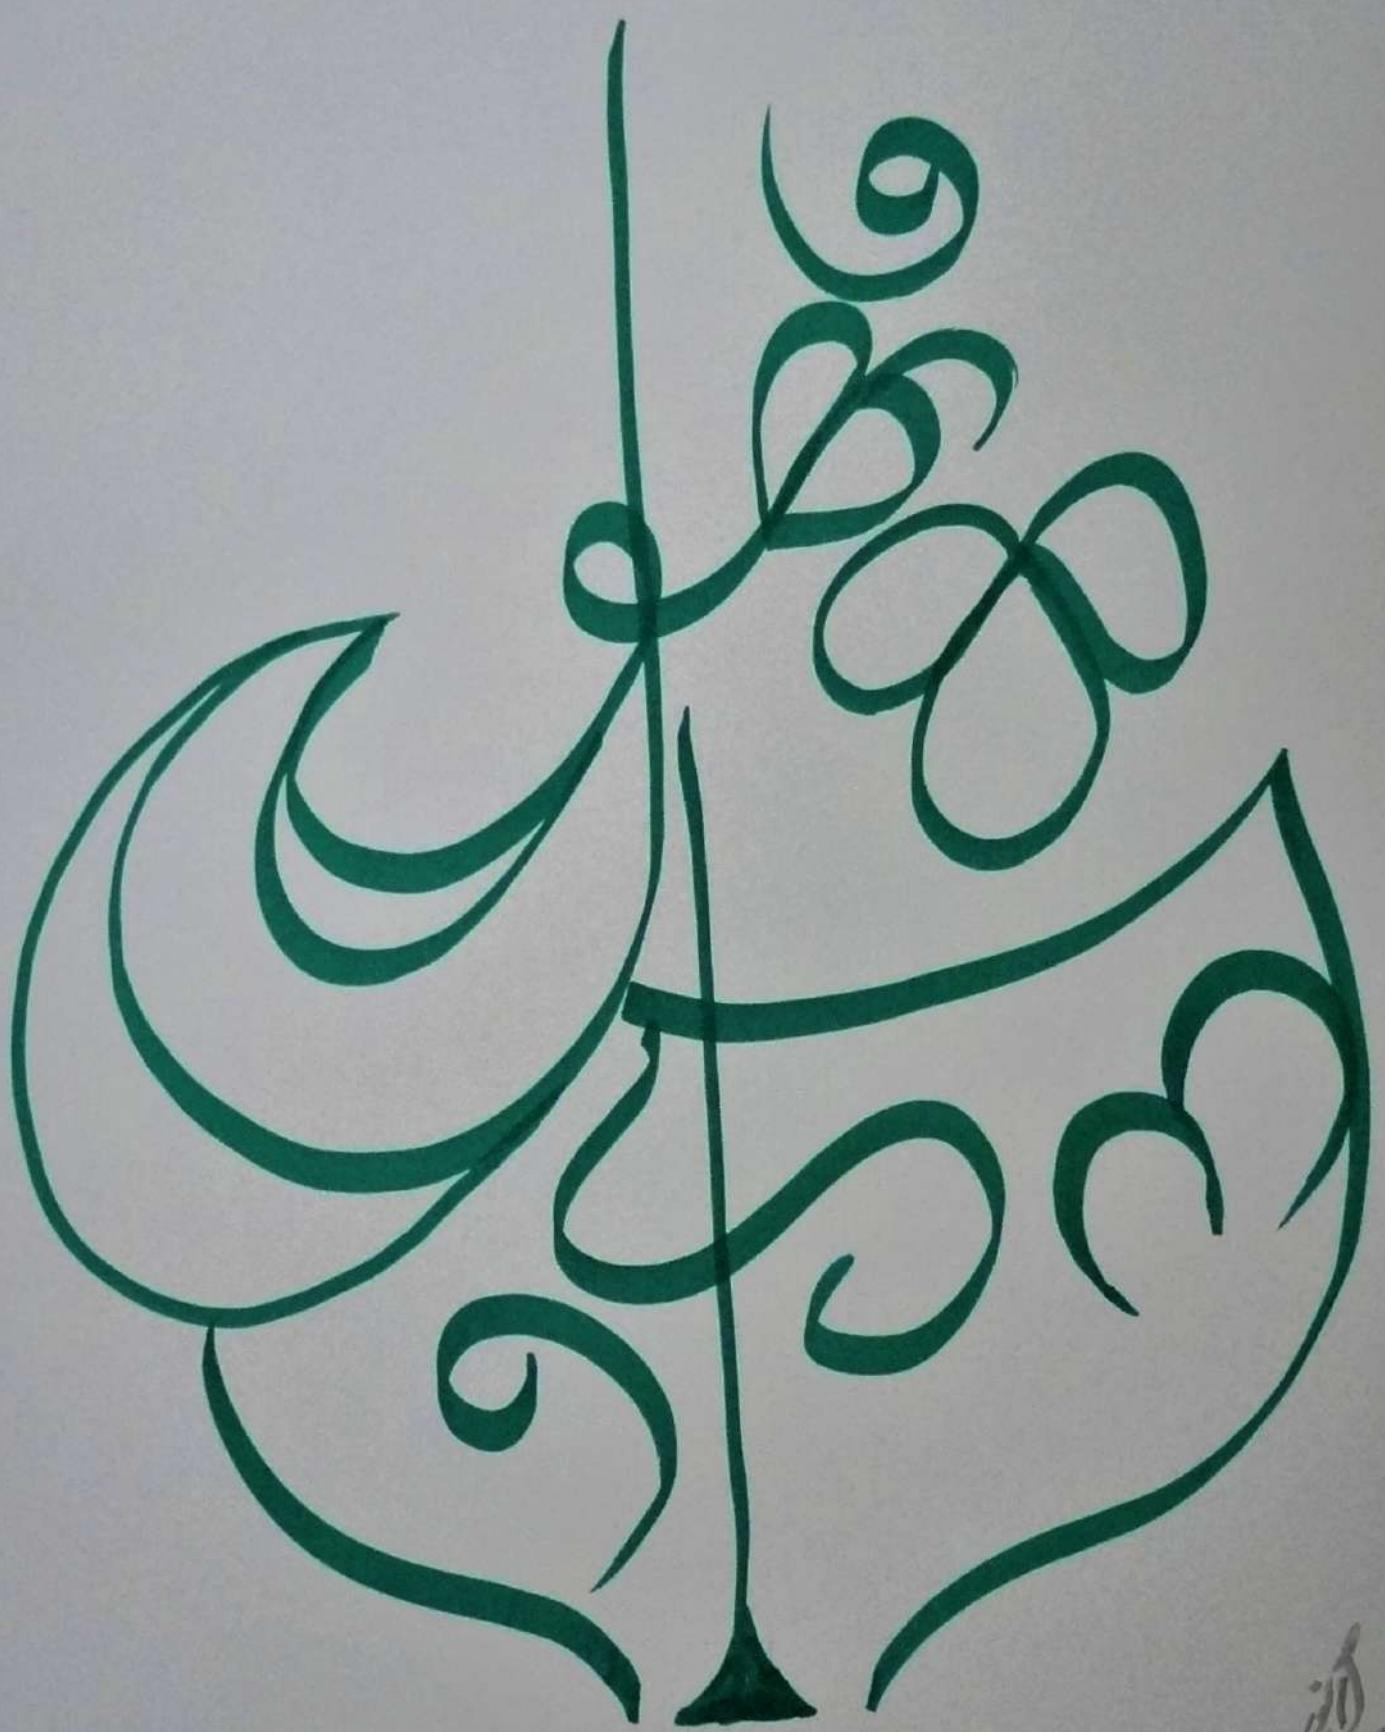

الله
بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم

الله
2012

Description: Phay (پھ) for Phool. Phool means flower in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word phool is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of phool [flower] which is the meaning of the word that is written. In Nastaliq script of Apni Boli it is written as (پھول) [پھ+ول] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is written as (फूल) [फ+ ल]'oo' sound is represented through the maatra (ऽ) of (ऊ).

Phay (پھ) is the second aspirated letter in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli. In Devanagari it comes after its paired sound of 'pa'. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is represented with letter (फ). Both the letters (پھ) & (फ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/pʰ/”. They both give the sound of “ph”. There is no equivalent of this sound in English. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (ph).

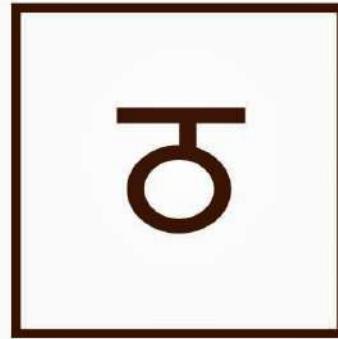

29

Description: *Thay (ڦ) for Thaal. Thaal means platter in Apni Boli. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word thaal is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of thaal [platter] which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written as (ڦڦ) [ڦ+ڦ] in Nastaliq script and as (थाल) [थ+ ा+ ल] in Devanagari script of Apni Boli.*

Thay (ڦ) is the third in the aspirated series of letters in Nastaliq alphabets of Apni Boli. The single letter which represents this sound in Devanagari script of Apni Boli is (थ), which as a sequence appears after ta (त) in the Devanagari alphabet of Apni Boli. Both the letters (ڦ) & (थ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/tʰ/”. They both give the sound of “th” as in (Thailand). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (th).

Description: Thay (ٿ) for 'theyla'. Theyla means hawker's trolley written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu). It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word theyla is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of theyla [hawker's trolley] which is the meaning of the word that is written. Theyla is written in Nastaliq as (ٿيڻا) [ِ+ڻ+ڻ+ٿ] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (ठेڻا) [ठ + े + ڻ + ڻا] the sound 'e' of (ठ) is represented through its maatra (ڻ)].

Thay (ٿ) is the fourth aspirated sound in Nastaliq and its equivalent in Devanagari script of Apni Boli is thay (ठ). Both the letters (ٿ) & (ठ) have corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/t̪ʰ/”. They both give the sound of “th” as in English word (at-home). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (th) or (t̪h).

مُحَمَّدٌ نَّبِيُّ الْأَنْبِيَاءِ

الله - 2011

Description: Jhay (ڄ) for jharoka. Jharokha is a type of overhanging enclosed balcony used typically in Mughals and Rajasthani architecture. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word jharoka is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of jharoka [balcony] which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written in Nastaliq as ((ڄ,ڙ)[+ڙ+, +ڙ+ڙ]) and in Devanagari as (झାରୁକା) [ଝ + ର + ଙୁ + କ + ା,] the “o” sound is represented by its maatra(ঁ)].

Jhay (ঝ) is the fifth aspirated letter in Nastaliq series in Devanagari script of Apni Boli letter (ঝ) represents the same sound. Both the letters (ঝ) & (ঝ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/dʒʰ/”. They both give the sound of “jh”. There is no equivalent of this sound in English. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (jh).

한국

Description:

Chay (ڇ) for Chatri. Chatri means umbrella or canopy in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word chatri is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of chatri [umbrella] which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urd] as (ڇڙي) [ڻ + ڙ + ڦ + ڻ] and in Devanagari script it is written as (छतरी) , [छ + त + र + री] [छ+त+र+ई] [ई in the end is represented through its maatra (री)]. Another more formal way of writing Chatri in Devanagari script is (छत्री). Because the Devanagari script of Apni Boli is sound based system of writing, therefore both the ways of writing are correct. This is the beauty of the Devanagari script of Apni Boli. These beauties and intricacies of the two scripts are discussed in the second book of this series i.e. Apni Boli Apna Smaj by the same author.

Chay (ڇ) is the second aspirated sound in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is represented by letter (छ) which is fourteenth letter in Devanagari alphabets. Both the letters (ڇ) & (छ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/tʃʰ/”. They both give the sound of “cha”. In English this sound is not available. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (cha).

الله

الله
2011

Description: Praim Dharam is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly, which means 'Religion of Love'. In Nastaliq script Praim Dharam is written as (پرم) and in Devanagari it is written as (परेम धर्म).

Dhay (ڦ) for Dharm, can closely be translated as 'religion' but its meaning is more philosophical and deep. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ڦ) [ڦ+ڻ+ڦ] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (धर्म) [धर्म], (र) is represented through its diacritic form. In Devanagari script “ र (ra) is a wild letter appearing in many different forms according to the situation. Dharam is basically a Sanskrit word. In Sanskrit there is a hidden sound of “a” in the last letter “ma” (म) which does not appear in writing but is articulated at times, perhaps this is a cause of main confusion for non-native speakers of Apni Boli when they use any word of Apni Boli which is borrowed from Sanskrit they use 'a' sound separately by a letter 'a' as in Dharm(a), Nirvan(a) and Yog(a) etc.

Dhay (ڦ) is the seventh aspirated letter in Natalique script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] it is represented with letter (ध). Both the letters (ڦ) & (ध) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/d^h /”. This sound is not available in English. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (dh).

بِسْمِ اللّٰهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيْمِ

Description: Dhaal means shield in Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu). It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word dhaal is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture as if somebody is carrying a dhaal [shield] which depicts the meaning of the word 'dbal' that is written. It is written in Nastaliq script as (ڈھال) [ڈ+ھ+ال] and as (ڈال) [ڈ+ا+ل] in Devanagari script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu].

DHay (ڈھ) is the eighth aspirated sound in Nastaliq and same sound is represented in Devonagri script of Apni –Boli [Hindi-Urdu] with the letter (ڈ). It represents a peculiar sound of Apni Boli. This sound is so peculiar to Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] that hardly any other language of the world outside the sub-continent has this sound. It is quite hard to even transliterate or transcript in Roman alphabets. Both the letters (ڈھ) & (ڈ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/d̪h/”. They both give the sound of “DH”. This sound is not available in English. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (dh) or (d̪h).

لَهُمْ

لَهُمْ

Description: The most common word in Apni Boli which contains the letter Rabay (رہب) or (رہب) is parhna, means to read and also to study in Apni Boli. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word parhna is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of somebody reading, which depicts the meaning of 'parhna' the infinitive that is written. It is written in Devanagari as (पढ़ना) [प + ढ + न + ा] and in Nastaliq as (پڑھنا) [پ + ر + ڈ + ھ + ن]. Unfortunately our societies are plagued with illiteracy.

Rebay (رہب) is the ninth aspirated sound in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] and is an aspirated pair sound of letter Rah (ر). As no word begins with letter Reb (ر) in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] similarly no word begins with its aspirated pair (رہب). It always comes in the middle or at the end of the word. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] it is represented with letter (ঢ) which gives exactly the same sound of (رہب). Both the letters (رہب) & (ঢ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/r̥h/”. There is no sound equivalent to this sound in English. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (rh) or (ঢh).

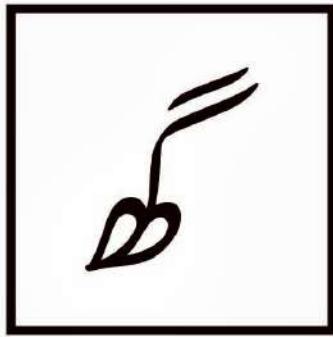

الفن
2012

Description: Sub 'Kahial Tamasha' means 'everything is staged'. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli. Khay for Khail. Khail means play or sport in Apni Boli. Khail is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (خیل) [خ + ی + ل] and in Devanagari of Apni Boli as (खेल) [ख + ई + ल]. Sub Khail Tamasha is written in Nastaliq as (سب کھیل تماشا) [س + ب + ک + ھ + ی + ل + ت + م + ا + ش + ا] and in Devanagari as (सब खेलता माशा) [स + ब + ख + ई + ल + त + ा + म + ा + श + ा]. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the phrase 'sub kbaial tamasha' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture as if somebody is juggling which depicts the meaning of 'kbail' which means play-, a word that is written.

khay (خ) is the tenth aspirated letter of Nastaliq script of Apni-Boli [Hindi-Urdu] it gives the sound of “kba” in Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is represented by letter (ख). Both the letters (خ) & (ख) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/k^h/”. There is no equivalent sound in English for this sound. Both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (kh).

Description:

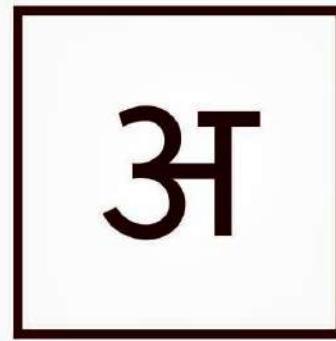

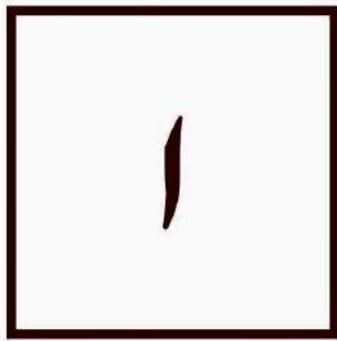

Ghar Dar (house and door) is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli. The phrase 'ghar dar' i.e. house and door is usually spoken to connote the meaning of house in Apni Boli. This reflects a sociolinguistic aspect of our society as we cannot think of a house without a door. The door is a part and parcel of the house which gives the sense of privacy and safety. Ghar Dar is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the phrase 'Ghar Dar' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of a small hut with a door which is the meaning of the words that are written.

Ghay (ঝ) for ghar. Ghar means home in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written as (ঝ) [র + ঘ] in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and as (ঘ) or (ঘর) [ঘ + র] , the letter র “ra” appears in its diacritic form underneath letter ঘ “gbay” in first style of writing in Devanagari script of Apni Boli. Ghar is one of the basic necessities of human life yet in this part of the world millions of people are homeless passing their lives in places like footpaths and railway stations' platforms etc.

Ghay (ঝ) is the eleventh and last letter of the aspirated series in Nastaliq script. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli it comes with letter ‘ga’ (ঁ) as a pair of aspirated sound with it. Both the letters (ঝ) & (ঘ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/gʰ/”. They both give the sound of “gh”. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (gh).

الله
لهم

الله
لهم

Description: Alif (ا) for Allah. Allah, the proper name of the God of Muslims. It is written three times in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and two time in Devanagari script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. In Nastaliq script of Apni Boli it is written as (ا) [ا+ل+ل+ا] and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is written as (अल्लाह) [अ+ल+ल+आ+ह]. It starts with the letter (ا) in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and with the letter (अ) in Devanagari script of Apni Boli both produce the same sound.

Alif (ا) is the first letter of Nastaliq script of Apni Boli and letter (अ) is the first letter in Devanagari script of Apni Boli and also the first vowel sound. In Devanagari script each vowel sound is represented with an independent letter with is either represented with full letter or its diacritic form as the vowel sound 'a' is either represented with letter (अ) or by its diacritic form (ओ) . Both the letters (ا) & (अ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/ə/". They both give the sound of "a" as in English word (father) . They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (a).

The description of letter Alif (ا) is repeated here to explain complete set of vowel sounds of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu].

الله

Description: Aashram means a spiritual hermitage. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli. It is written jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e the word Aashram is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of Aashram [hermitage] which is the meaning of the word that is written. In Nastaliq script of Apni Boli Aashram is written as (ااشرم) [ا+ش+رم] in Devanagari it is written as (आश्रम) [आ+श+म] [आ+श+र+म].

The word Aashram starts with letter (ا) 'alifmaddah' which has a stretched sound of alif normally is equivalent to two alifs (ا)+(ا) that is why it is called maddah means stretched. The letter (आ) in Devanagari has an equivalent sound of alif-maddah (ا). Both the letters invariably come in the beginning of the words and do not change their shape. Both the letters (ا) & (आ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/a:/”. They both give the sound of “aa”. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (aa).

आशा

Description: The word Inqlab means revolution in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] in unison in such a way that a picture of a sailing ship is formed. It starts with (ا) in Nastaliq script and with (શ) in Devanagari script of Apni Boli. It is written in Nastaliq as (ا+ن+ق+ل+اب) [ا+ن+ق+ل+اب] and in Devanagari as (શ+ં+ક+લ+ા+બ) [શ+ં+ક+લ+ા+બ].

The second set of vowels in Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu) starts with the short vowel 'i' as in (ink) sound . In Nastaliq it is represented with Zair (ا) a small slanting dash underneath the letter. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] it is represented with letter (શ), which maintains its shape of (શ) in the beginning of a word however in the middle or in the end of a word it is represented with its maatra (ઉ).

Both the letters (શ) & (ا) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/i/”. They both give the sound of “i” as in word dill. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (i).

الحمد لله رب العالمين

Description:

Word Eeshwer means god or supreme being and is written with (اے). The word Eeshwer is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts jointly. In Nastaliq it is written as (اے) [ا, + پ, + اے] and in Devanagari as (ईश्वर) [ई + श्व + र] or more elaborately [ई + श्र + व + र].

The long vowel of “ee” sound is represented in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] as (اے) and same sound is represented in Devanagari script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] with a single letter (ई). This long vowel of Devanagari in the beginning of a word appears as (ई) and also when it is followed by any vowel sound. In rest of the cases, in the middle and in the end of a word it is represented through its maatra (ءी). In Nastaliq script it is represented with (اے) in the beginning of a word. However, in the middle and in the end of a word it is written as choty yay (ء) but when it is followed by any vowel it is represented by (ء) over choty yay (ء) like (ءے).

Both the letters (ई) & (اے) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/i: /”. Both give the sound of “ee” as in the word feet. They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (ee).

الْمُؤْمِنُ
يُؤْمِنُ
لَهُ

Description: The word 'ullo' means owl in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Devanagari and Nastaliq scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word ullo is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of ullo [owl] which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written in Devanagari as (उल्ल) [उ+ल+ल+़] and in Nastaliq as (۽) [،+ڙ+ڙ+ڻ]. Interestingly Ullo is a sign of dumbness in our society whereas in western societies it is a sign of wisdom.

The third set of vowels in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] starts with the short vowel 'u'. It is represented in Nastaliq with Paish (') a small loop shape appears above the letter like ('). In Devanagari script of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] it is represented with the letter (उ) and in the middle or at the end it is represented by its maatrasa (়).

Both the letters (उ) & (') have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is "/u/". They both give the sound of "oo" as in English word (look). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (u or o).

الله

الله
2012

Description: The phrase “Ooljalool” means haphazard in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] jointly making a haphazard design. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (اُول جلوُل) [ل+, +ج+ل+, +ل+, +و+] and in Devanagari script as (ऊलजलूल) [ऊ+ल+ج+ل+و+ل]

The long vowel of “u” is represented in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (و) and in Devanagari it is represented with the letter (ऊ). This long vowel of Devanagari script of Apni Boli always appear as (ऊ) in the beginning of a word or when it comes after any vowel, but in the middle and in the end it is represented through its maatra(ঁ) and also when it comes after a consonant. The Nastaliq equivalent retains its shape of (و) except when it comes after vowel it appears with hamza over wao as (و) along with paish (ؑ) over it.

Both the letters (ऊ) & (و) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/u:/”. They both give the sound of “oo” as in word (loot). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (oo).

Description:

Word Aekta means unity in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli in unison in such a way that a picture of digit one is formed which symbolizes the meaning of the word 'aekta'. It is written in Devanagari script as (एकता) [ए +क +ता] and in Nastaliq script as (۱۱۱) [۱+۱۱۱+۱۱۱].

The fourth set of vowels in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] starts with short “e” sound. In Nastaliq script of Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu) it is represented with (۱۱۱) and in Devanagari script of Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu) it is represented with a letter (ए). In Nastaliq in the beginning of a word it is represented with (۱۱۱) and in the middle and in the end it gives the sound of only beri ya (۱۱۱). In Devanagari it appears as (ए) in the beginning of a word as well as in the middle after a vowel sound, in all other cases it is represented with its maatra (ঁ).

Both the letters (ए) & (۱۱۱) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/e:/”. They both give the sound of “e/a” their sound is somewhat in between 'e' of (yell) and 'a' of (yale). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (ae).

Description: Aelaan means announcement in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word 'aelaan' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of a face with mouth wide open as if he is making some 'aelaan' [announcement] which is the meaning of the word that is written. It is written in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (ऐلآن) [ऐ + ل + آ + ن] and in Devanagari script of Apni (اعلان) [ا + ل + ا + ن].

The long vowel of “ea” sound is represented with (ے) in Nastaliq and with letter (ऐ) of Devanagari script of Apni Boli (Hindi-Urdu). This letter of Devanagari keeps its shape (ऐ) in the beginning and after any vowel sound, otherwise it is represented through its maatra (ء). In Nastaliq it is represented with (ے) or at time with (ۓ) in the beginning. In the middle it is represented with bari ya with zabar on it like (ے) and in the end if it comes after vowel sound it carries hamza on it (۽).

Both the letters (ऐ) & (ے) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/ɛ:/”. They both give the sound of “e” as in English word (bell). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (ae).

الله
عَزَّلَهُ

الله
عَزَّلَهُ

Description:

The word Orbna means to cover in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. It is written in Nastaliq and Devanagari scripts of Apni Boli jointly in Samrup Rachna calligraphic style i.e. the word 'orbna' is written in two different scripts of one language in such a way that it forms a picture of a lady with her head covered, the picture communicates the meaning of 'orbna' (to cover) the infinitive that is written. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is written as (ओँढना) [ओ+ঢ+ন+ା] and in Nastaliq it is written as (اُوڏڻا) [ا+و+ڏ+ڻ+ا].

The fifth and the last set of vowels of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] starts with “o” sound which is peculiar to Apni Boli. In Devanagari script of Apni Boli it is represented with the letter (ओ) and in Nastaliq it is written as (،) or wao (،) preceded by zabar. The Devanagari Letter (ओ) keeps this shape when it comes in the beginning and after vowel sound in a word, otherwise it is represented by its maata (ଓ). In Nastaliq it appears as (،) in the beginning and in the middle and in the end it appears as (،).

Both the letters (ଓ) & (،) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/o:/”. They both give the sound of “o” as in English word (old). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as (o).

لهم اذْهَبْ

الْمُنْزَهُ ٢٠١٢

Description: The phrase Aulad-i-Adam means 'Children of Adam' in Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]. it is written in Devanagari script of Apni Boli as (औलादेआदम) [औ+ ल +ा+ दे +आ+ द +म] and in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli as (اولادآدم) [م+ د+ آ+ د+ ا+ ل+ ا+ و].

The Phrase Aulad-i-Adam start with the long vowel sound of (au) which is represented by the letter (ओ) in Devanagari script of Apni Boli and with letters (اُ) with a zabar (‘) over wao as (اُ). The woa with zabar over it is also called 'waomaroof' in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli. They (ओ) (اُ) both have corresponding sound. The letter (ओ) retains its shape of (اُ) in the beginning of a word as well as when it comes after any vowel sound, otherwise it is represented through its maatra (ঁ). Both the letters (ओ) & (اُ) have a corresponding sound which according to International Phonetic Alphabets (IPA) is “/ɔ:/”. They both give the sound of “o” as in English word (pod). They both can be transcribed in Romanized form as(au).

اَوْلَادُ دَادِ
بَالْمَلَكِ
اَوْلَادُ مَهْمَ

٢٠٢٢

Description: “Om” is a sacred sound. It is written in Sanskrit as (ॐ). It is a mantra in Hinduism. This symbol has a spiritual meanings in most of the Indian religions, but the meaning and connotations of 'Om' vary between the diverse schools within and across the various traditions. In Hinduism it is one of the most important spiritual symbols. It refers to soul, self within and ultimate reality, entirety of the universe, truth, divine, supreme spirit, cosmic principles, knowledge etc. This is used in the beginning of Hindu texts. It is a sacred spiritual incantation made before and during puja and private prayers. It is written in Nastaliq as (اے) [r+,+i]. In the picture it is written five times in Sanskrit and once in Nastaliq script of Apni Boli.

It is so comprehensive and universal a sound that it cannot be transcribed in any other language with one single letter. 'Om' is the elemental universal vibration from which the entire universe sprang.

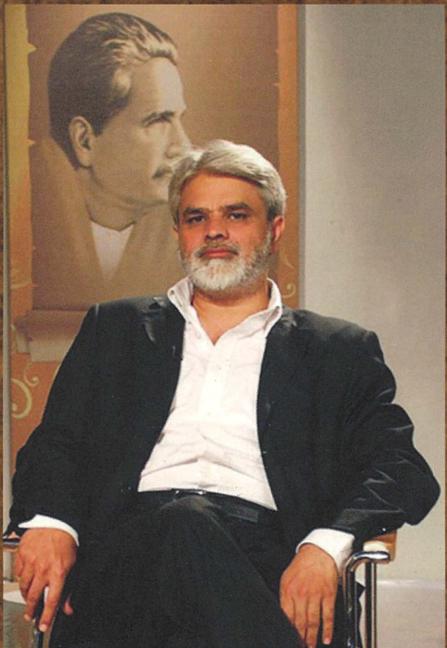

This picture is the cover title of the second book “Apni Boli Apna Smaj” in this series by the same author. The second book of this series contains linguistic details regarding Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] and commonalities of cultures between India and Pakistan in much detail.

We are all children of Adam and we are here for a very short period of time!

وَمَا كُلَّا

All that is on earth is to perish.

Dr. Syed Mohammed Anwer, Advocate Supreme Court of Pakistan is an Islamabad based corporate lawyer. He is an active member of civil society and has written books on human rights and women's emancipation. He writes articles on social issues including socio-linguistics. Calligraphy and painting are his hobbies. His interest in calligraphy combines his passion for both disciplines of art and linguistics.

In this book Dr. Anwer manages to introduce the spoken words of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu] with a graphic justice. "Calligraphic Expression of Apni Boli [Hindi-Urdu]" is the subject of this book which sets an unconventional precedent in this art form. The latest work of calligraphy by him is the first of its kind in which two scripts of the same language i.e. Hindi-Urdu are used in unison with each other. Hindi and Urdu is one language when spoken but written in two different scripts hence it is the only major language of the world with this characteristic. The purpose of this calligraphic work is to highlight this aspect of our language which is one of the major common denominators between India and Pakistan.

Samrup Rachna is the calligraphic medium of art which in its entirety spells peace and tolerance.

The medium of art is used to bridge the gap of two sister scripts of a language.

These calligraphic impressions thrive on the diversity that is the domain of ApniBoli [Hindi-Urdu].

Wahdat Foundation
Islamabad, Pakistan.