THE SURVEY OF EARLY BYZANTINE SITES
IN ÖLÜDENİZ AREA
(LYCIA, TURKEY)

THE FIRST PRELIMINARY REPORT

Acknowledgments

Our survey of the Late Antique and Byzantine sites which began in 1990 was made possible by the generous and thoughtful collaboration of many individuals and institutions. We are greatly obliged to the President of the Republic of Turkey, who extended to us not only kind permission to undertake this project, but also the warmest assistance and encouragement that a foreign scientific project could ever hope to enjoy. Our sincere thanks go also to the Ministry of Culture, especially to the Director of Cultural Monuments, Dr. Engin Özgen, as well as to the Governor of Muğla, Dr. Lale Aytaman, with whom we shared both enthusiasm and an interest in the protection of the area's cultural monuments and natural environment. From the bottom of our hearts we thank the citizens of Fethiye, including our dear friend Captain Mustafa, on whose boat we depended so; Mrs. Ekin Duru, without whose amazing understanding of language and our objectives the project could not have been accomplished; the kaymakam of the city, and the police chief; Mr. Musafa, owner of the Hotel Meri, where we enjoyed such comfort and friendship. We shall never forget the young collaborators, especially dear Ali Hercules, who helped us so conscientiously with soil and toil.

Financial support came from various individuals and institutions: the Kajima Foundation for Art enabled us to initially embark on the project; the Ministry of Education of Japan, to which we can never be too grateful, supported us for three consecutive years; Dr. Yamamura enabled us, with generous financial aid, to introduce a permanent guardianship for the monuments on Gemiler Ada; Takanashi Scientific Fund allowed us to research the surface finds from the islands, and to publish our preliminary report; while Osaka Foundation of International Exchange provided the financial aid that made possible the first international symposium, held in Ölüdeniz in 1994, on the preservation of cultural monuments and the environment along the Lycian coast.

We are deeply obliged to all the individuals, foundations, and institutions without whose kind assistance we could never have attained our initial objectives. At the same time, we are very proud not so much of the scientific results that our project has produced, but of the friendly and enthusiastic international partnership we attained despite the cultural and institutional differences between our two nations. Despite our linguistic, cultural, religious, and ideological differences, there remains firmly implanted a mutual recognition that we belong to one large family on this small planet Earth.

The editor is deeply indebted to those who not only dedicated themselves for years for this survey project but also kindly complied with my request to yield their right to publish the results of their research in this report. The following people participated and contributed to the present volume, although the editor is solely responsible for the contents: Satoru Aisaka, Koji Nakatani, Shin'ya Fukunaga, Takeshi Sugii, Yoshitaka Hojo, Kazuo Asano, Tomoyuki Masuda, Michiko Nakajima, Toshio Katsumata and Tetsuro Ohashi. Yasushi Nagatsuka, Hachiro Sogawa, Kazuhiko Emura and Hozumi Fujisawa also participated in the expeditions.

Last but not least, I am grateful to Ms. Fukiko Yamaguchi and Ms. Lidia Renyi of Tanko- Weatherhill Inc. in Tokyo, for their exceptional efforts in completing the edition of the present volume.
